DOWNEY BARES HIS SCHEME OF BANK LOOTING

ACCUSED OF FLEECING BANK THIEF

Resignation of Head of Veterans' Bureau Is Accepted by President

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 16.—President Harding has accepted the resignation of Colonel Charles R. Forbes as director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, it was announced officially at the White House today.

Forbes is in Europe. His resignation, effective February 28, was placed in President Harding's hands before he left the United States and was accepted today in the face of a cable received from Forbes yesterday requesting that action be held in abeyance until he returned.

Ill health was given by Forbes as his reason for retiring.

Forbes letter to Harding said: "After nearly two years of strenuous service I find my own health so endangered that retrenchment is necessary to safeguard it; and I realize that only a partial service is impossible, I, therefore, respectfully request that my resignation be accepted as of the date above mentioned."

COLD WAVE WILL LINGER OVER WEEK-END

The cold wave will continue until Sunday and perhaps longer.

Weather Forecaster Smith declares that no relief is in sight although temperatures may rise slightly.

Furthermore, the frigidity will be accompanied by north to northwest winds of varying velocity, which today ranged from eighteen to twenty-four miles an hour.

This was the coldest day of the Winter. The thermometer started falling at 1 o'clock this morning from 13 above until it registered 5.3 at 7:30 this morning. The record low before today was 5.4 on January 13.

The cold wave is country wide. It has even reached to Florida and at Key West, invariably the warmest place in the United States, dropped to 64, whereas for some time past the average temperature has been between 72 and 76.

The weather will be fair tonight and tomorrow and probably Sunday. In fact, it looks as though clear skies will prevail until the intense cold breaks.

Fifty-six inches of snow have fallen here this Winter, it was stated at the Weather Bureau here today. On twenty-seven days snow fell in appreciable quantity and on forty days there were traces of snow. The snowfall to date is far above normal, it was said. The Weather Bureau at Springfield stated more than eighty inches had fallen, a record for more than a century, or since the office has been opened.

Ex-Bank Clerk Admits He Often Won on Races, but Gambled Winnings

Paul F. Downey's gambling on the "ponies" ran as high as $25,000 in one day's betting.

Downey, twenty-year-old clerk who stole $127,000 from the Federal Trust Company while employed there last year, admitted this today in cross-examination.

He has turned State's evidence against Humphrey Lane and Robert L. Finn, alleged bookmakers, who are on trial on charges of getting the stolen money away from him in racing bets.

Downey shed more light on his own gambling activities. He was a card gambler. He played "Red Dog," made money at it, too, he said:

"I made money at cards at Manning's office after I had started betting with Lane. I made about $200 playing "Red Dog." I knew Manning was a bootlegger."

Downey mentioned one Manning.

Pupils of 12 Taught to Use Dope

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 16.—Scores of school children of El Paso, some as young as twelve years, are being taught the use of narcotics, the Federal Grand Jury reported in a written statement addressed to the Federal District Court and citizens of El Paso.

Seventy-seven indictments were returned, most of them alleging violation of the Harrison narcotic law.

CHILDREN FIGHT FOR GOULD ESTATE

New York, Feb. 16.—Jane and George Sinclair, children of the present Mrs. George J. Gould, who was Miss. Vere Sinclair, an English actress, have taken the name of Gould, and efforts are being made to have them share in the family fortune.

This was revealed today in the litigation growing out of the appointment of a referee to take an accounting of the Jay Gould estate.

George J. Gould had seven children by his marriage to Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould, who died in 1921. He was secretly married to Mrs. Sinclair six months after the death of his wife.

The Goulds are now abroad and the papers show that he is at present seriously ill in Scotland.

Dublin, Feb. 16 (By Associated Press).—The offices of the women's organization supporting the Free State government, located in Rutland square, were wrecked by the explosion of a mine today.

Valera Says Guilt Rests on Britain

By DANIEL O'CONNELL.

Copyright, 1923, by International News Service.

Dublin, Feb. 16.—Eamon De Valera, leader of the Republicans, today told why he refused to accept the Free State proposals for a "peace plebiscite." He said he had always sought peace, and put responsibility for the present warfare in Ireland upon England.

The interview was given in his secret Dublin headquarters.

"We have always regarded civil war as the greatest of national dangers," said De Valera. "We have always sought a peaceful solution of our troubles.

"The primary guilt for bloodshed rests upon English statesmen. "We are unwilling to let acceptance of the Anglo-Irish treaty rest with an election (plebiscite), because the court that is proposed is not that of the whole Irish people, but only that section containing those living in twenty-six of thirty-two counties.

"We cannot accept the decision of a court that is under the duress of England's threat of war."

(By court, De Valera meant the Irish voting public, whose decision at the polls would establish the future status of government in Ireland. The Free State government proposed a plebiscite on condition the Republicans surrendered their arms first.)

TRIED TO DIE 3 TIMES FOR LOVE

Unrequited Infatuation of Divorcee for Professor Drove Her to Poison

Unrequited love for a college professor drove Mrs. Maude Stratton, a Back Bay divorcee, to seek death by poison.

A cold letter from the man for whom she had given up her husband, home and friends, in which he told her to forget him was the final push that sent her down to where she considered life hopeless and death by poison welcome.

Three times she tried to die, once while living in a room in Irvington street and again while in a Hunting ton avenue house and still again while in the Commonwealth Hotel last Sunday.

She lies in the City Hospital today in a serious condition, hoping for death.

LOAN'D HIM $5,000.

According to the story which Mrs. Stratton told her friends, a story which was corroborated to a great extent by the husband from whom she was divorced, Dr. A. L. Stratton of Northfield, she gave up her husband upon the promise of the professor that he would secure a divorce from his wife and marry her in December, last.

The Stratton divorce was granted in July, last and Mrs. Stratton was preparing to go to the professor in December. The professor asked her to help him to establish a fruit farm and a new home and she gave him, she told her friends, $3,000.

WIFE WON HIM BACK.

Then, in December, he wrote to her that his wife had won him back again and that the dream of the love nest on the fruit farm had failed out.

Mrs. Stratton's first attempted suicide closely followed this letter. She continued to write to the professor, imploring him to keep his promise and warning him that she would kill herself if he failed her.

His reply served to deepen her despair and again the City Hospital doctors dragged her back from the

JILTED SUITOR THREATENED SWEETHEART

After pretty Susie Parente, youthful Italian girl, had testified in East Boston Court today that she did not love Nicola Pagliusha, whom she alleges threatened her with bodily harm, the court fined Nicola $15.

Susie came to this country about a year ago. She was introduced to Pagliusha. They became friends, and eventually the pair went to City Hall and filed marriage attentions. Susie changed her mind later when she found she did not love Nicola.

The police allege Nicola waited for the girl on the street a week ago near her home, and threatened to kill her, unless she became his wife.

She told the court today she never could learn to love Nicola.

GIRL LEAPS INTO NET AT FIRE

South Boston Residents Carried to Safety When Flames Sweep House

Trapped by flames in a third floor bedroom today, pretty Helen Conners, twenty-two years old, climbed to the window sill, poised a moment and leaped to a life net held by firemen.

Then, as calmly as though diving to life nets was a daily occurrence, she climbed out and walked away. Neighbors took her in and later she was under the treatment of a physician. She suffered from exposure and shock.

Fifteen other persons barely escaped death when fire swept through No. 161 O street, South Boston, the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Conners and their eight children, and burned through into the apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Murphy and their five youngsters, all of whom were carried out.

LA FOLLETTE ATTACKS WAR DEBT PLAN

Washington, Feb. 16 (By International News Service)—Declaring the Anglo-American debt agreement would bind the United States to the "wheels of Europe's imperialistic chariot by chains of gold," Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, today scathingly denounced the refunding plan as a "trick of diplomacy" which would increase the value of bonds held by international bankers. La Follette asserted he would sooner see the British debt cancelled than accept the agreement approved by the American debt commission.

FRENCH SENTENCE GERMAN MAYOR TO 3 YEARS

Essen, Feb. 1 (By International News Service).—Burgomaster Havenstein of Oberhausen today was sentenced to three years' imprisonment by a French military court for sabotage in refusing to furnish the French electric light and power. Director Bussman of the Rhenish Electrical Works was fined 5,000,000 marks.

Essen, Feb. 16 (By the Associated Press.—Two French soldiers were wounded last night by German security police. The tension has been increased by the shooting and the French moved tanks into the city.

The shooting arose from the soldiers demanding and being refused drinks in a cafe. A row started, the security police appeared and, the French claim, fired first.

Attempted sabotage was reported from various parts of the Ruhr. One case resulted in the death of a German railway worker shot by a sentry as the worker attempted to enter a roundhouse.

edge of the grave after she had taken bichloride of mercury.

She secured a room in St. Botolph street after she was released from the hospital and made a last appeal to the professor. This she dispatched with a diamond stickpin, to which was attached a slip which read:

"I will be yours until death."

PRAYS FOR DEATH.

He replied coldly as before, saying that he was returning the gift by a friend. The friend and the pin she never saw.

Then she sought to engage the sympathy of the professor by sending him a letter purporting to have been written by a friend. She dictated this letter to a friend so that it would not appear in her handwriting and in it she described her own sorrow as though some other person had taken wife an how and was striving to patch up a lover's quarrel.

This last letter was never delivered. The friend after writing it decided not to mail it to the professor and the third suicide attempt followed.

To the nurses at the City Hospital she says:

"Let me die. I love a man I can never have. Let me die."

with an office in Washington street in his Thursday testimony.

Judge Bishop's session of the Superior Criminal Court was jammed today with men of the sporting fraternity. Police inspectors were plentiful and they were able to discern here and there men known to them as living by their wits.

He was asked by Attorney John F. McDonald, counsel for Finn & Lane, how he covered up his bank dealings for so many months. He replied frankly:

"It was not unnatural. I did the same as any other bank clerk, making charges against the customer's account. The first of the month I would telephone the customer that I had charged him in error. I would charge some one else's account and do the same thing over again."

Downey replied, in answer to another question:

"I knew I was lying when I did it."

Sharp questioning by Attorney McDonald brought out that Downey had won racing bets much more often than was at first supposed. President Mullowney of the Federal Trust Company, in testifying to Downey's statement to him, said Downey told him that he won only one bet, that of $17,000.

BET AWAY HIS WINNINGS.

But in direct testimony yesterday Downey said that he receive three checks from Finn, one for $4,700, a second for $2,500 and a third for a forgotten amount.

Q.—Did you make money and repay it that it again? A.—Yes.

Q.—And this was repeated many times? A.—Yes.

Soon after cross-examination was resumed today Downey said that he could not recall he amounts of his winnings. There was one week, he remembered, when he was "to the good." But he was always paying out money.

NEW FIGHT TO FREE ROLLINS STARTED

A new fight to free George Rollins started today almost the same moment as the iron-barred gates of Charlestown Prison clanged shut behind him.

George Rollins today began his sentence of life imprisonment, passed on him yesterday by Judge Keating in Suffolk Superior Court for the killing of Ordway R. Hall, manager of a Dorchester tea store, on December 21, 1917.

Friends of the convicted man framed a petition which will be presented at once to the Governor and his council asking for clemency on the ground that his lawyer went to sleep in the court room while he was on trial for his life.

The startling charge that representatives of the government, prosecuting Rollins, suppressed important evidence in his favor, is also included in the petition.

George Rollins was sentenced to a life term by Judge Keating after a conference with District Attorney O'Brien and counsel for Rollins.

The district attorney not pressed the parts of the indictment charging first degree murder. In explanation of this, he declared that the crime which resulted in the death of Edward T. Foley, for which Charles Rollins was sentenced to life imprisonment, was similar to the killing of Ordway T. Hall, for which George was tried, convicted but not sentenced.

RESCUE CREWS FROM 3 SHIPS IN PACIFIC

San Francisco, Feb. 16 (By International News Service).—The great storm which took the worst toll of shipping in the North Pacific in 75 years was reported subsiding today.

Three big vessels were complete wrecks. One was burned to the water's edge and possibly a fifth went on the rocks. The complete toll may not be known for several days.

More than a dozen vessels in the storm are off the Washington and British Columbia coasts and not all have made port or reported.

Although reports to Swayne & Hoyt, agents for the owners of the British freighter Tuscan Prince, stated Captain J. Childers and his crew of 42 men had been saved and landed on Vancouver Island, the details of the rescue are missing. Some fear was felt that the rescue of the crew of the Santa Rita might have been confused with the Tuscan Prince.

The property loss to shipping is estimated at $4,000,000. The heroism of A. Hogart, who swam from his ship to the beach through mountainous seas to rig a breeches buoy made possible the rescue of the crew of the Santa Rita.

The rescue of the crew of the burning Nika was accomplished by the United States coast guard cutter Snowhomish amid giant seas.

As the last man was taken off the Nika went down in flames.

WHAT RIGHTS has a man in his own corpse, or mummy, if he happens to be an ancient Pharaoh?

Tutankhamen raises the question.

Rider Haggard says it is indecent to dig up Pharaohs and put them in museum cases. William Leach, British M. P., wants to know whether Egyptian citizens would be allowed to dig up British kings and queens.

The answer is that education and the earnest thought aroused by the sight of past futile greatness are more important than sentimentality about rulers that died three thousand years ago.

HAGGARD THINKS Tutankhamen should be buried under the great pyramid. Nice idea, but not enough people to go there. This government, by the way, didn't hesitate to dig up the body of a sailor supposed to have Russian crown jewels buried with him.

If Haggard and the British statesman have sympathy for Egypt, let them spend it on the overworked fellow of today, or on Egyptian children made blind by flies that feast undisturbed around their eyes.

One Egyptian baby ought to be more important than ten embalmed Tutankhamens, but isn't.

THE PRINCE OF WALES, visiting a veterans' hospital, was shown all the wounded except seven, whose state, he was told, "would shock His Royal Highness." When he insisted they showed him six of the terribly mutilated unfortunates, and at last, upon his demand, showed him the seventh poor creature, with his face deformed beyond all human shape. Only doctors and nurses had seen him. The Prince turned white, then bent over and kissed the soldier's shattered face.

The story, printed in every English newspaper today, will make the British royal family stronger than ever, and make it unpleasant for Labor members fighting a fifteen-thousand-pound yearly marriage allowance for the Prince's younger brother.

STEINMETZ, able scientist, says earth's food problem will be solved by breeding bacteria. We eat, and get many flavors from bacteria, but, like the gambler that cheated, we don't like to be told.

The flavor in imported cheese is due to bacteria, and the cleansing, life-prolonging quality in sour milk to the lactic bacillus. One particular bacillus makes alfalfa grow.

ASKS INTER-CITY PROBE UNDER BLUE SKY LAW

Senator Abbott Rice of Newton today filed an order in the Senate directing that the Department of Public Utilities investigate the effect and operation of the Blue Sky law particularly as affected the Inter-City Trust Company, and report back to the Senate by March 15.

The purpose of this is given in the sentence that reads: "To determine what changes, if any, are necessary to effect a prevention of the future operation of such fraudulent promotion schemes of the character and type of the Inter-City Trust Company."

It was referred to the Committee on Rules.

"Scientific salesmanship" was carried to the extreme limit by salesmen who sold stock in the Inter-City Trust Company to Massachusetts widows and small investors.

According to the testimony at a hearing before the Department of Public Utilities several months ago, the salesmen were provided with dividend checks which they carried with them on their calls. The checks were presented to owners of stock, together with a letter of introduction. While the stockholder was in a joyful mood the salesman would sell him or her more stock at a price $50 per share above market price.

When the "prospects" pleaded lack of ready money they were told that no money was needed. They were told to put up bonds or bank books as collateral and that within ten or fifteen days they would receive the collateral back together with stock and a handsome profit.

Los Angeles, Feb. 16.—Dismissal of the $700,000 damages suit brought against Herbert Rawlinson, motion picture actor, by Mrs. Ethel E. Clark, mother of Dorothy Clark, dancer, was expected today following announcement by Mrs. Clark and Rawlinson that a settlement had been effected.

Mrs. Clark, who sought the damages on the allegation the actor had attacked her daughter in a New York apartment when the dancer was fifteen years old, stated there would be no trial as Rawlinson had agreed to pay Miss Clark, now seventeen years old, $30 a week until she became twenty-one.

Rawlinson reiterated previous declarations of innocence and said he had made the settlement in preference to a continuation of the trial, which gave promise of being sensational.

Miss Clark married Karl Elms, a Boston salesman, shortly after her mother filed the suit against Rawlinson several months ago. Elms is seeking annulment of the marriage.

Boston Elevated, sponsored by Mayor Curley, are unconstitutional unless agreed to by the "El," according to the opinion of Attorney - General Jay R. Benton. He expressed these opinions to the legislative Committee on Rules.

Mr. Benton also stated that the establishment of five-cent fare zones "would be a direct impairment of the right given the trustees to regulate and fix fares."

RUMORED DIVORCE BUNK, SAYS MOORE

New York, Feb. 16.—"Divorce? That's the bunk!"

Tom Moore, strapping hero of the films, passes the lie direct to gossips of the Rialto who bruited it about that he and Renee Adoree, his charming wife, also of the films, had "split." Stories started when Renee started to the coast alone, leaving Tom to celebrate a wifeless second anniversary in bleak New York.

"I think it often does a husband and wife a lot of good to be apart for a time, don't you?" Moore added.

OFFER DIVA $15,000 WEEKLY IN MOVIES

The almost unbelievable figure of $15,000 weekly has been offered Tetrazzini to sing in picture theatres. She listened but had to decline through operatic engagements intervening. When Variety, the theatrical paper, published some years ago Charlie Chaplin had been offered a year's contract at $10,000 weekly, the paper was ridiculed for issuing such a statement. It was a fact as afterward developed.

BALLOON GOES 575 MILES IN 24 HOURS

Corry, Pa., Feb. 16.—Fred Kuhn, a Hamnon Run farmer, picked up a small balloon on his farm. Attached to it was a card of the United States Department of Agriculture, saying that the small balloon was dropped from a larger one while flying over Madison, Wis., the previous day. It had been carried by air currents 575 miles in twenty-four hours. Mr. Kuhn was informed in a department letter that the flight was the longest ever made by an experimental balloon.

HUDDLE IN HEATLESS HOME

Discovered by Visiting Nurse; All Are Critically Ill of Pneumonia

Springfield, Feb. 16.—Hospital doctors and nurses fought today to save the lives of a father, mother and six young children, all critically ill with lobar pneumonia, who were found in beds crowded in one room of an unheated four-room tenement at Indian Orchard.

A visiting nurse found them. The family includes Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mayette, Edith, nine; Viola, seven, and Sylvia, Willard, David and Lattabell.

They had no coal, no money to buy coal, and, if they had any in the place, would have been unable in their present helpless condition to build a fire and keep it going.

The families in the Indian Orchard manufacturing district are unable to buy coal now except through co-operation of the city fuel administration, which is distributing coal in 100-pound lots.

The visiting nurse discovered the family in the bleak tenement at No. 111 Healy avenue. The nurse summoned Dr. A. H. Reardon, who had the patients transferred to two hospitals. Reports today from both institutions said that all eight were on the "danger list."

Mayette brought his family to Indian Orchard two months ago from Canada. He was unable to get work. The family had neither relatives nor friends.

ELOPER IS GIVEN 6 MONTHS

Mother Hysterical in Court as Her Son Is Sentenced for Abduction

As Roland Clements of No. 117 Harvard street, Cambridge, was given six months by Judge Counihan in Cambridge court today the lad's mother, Mrs. Catherine Clements, became hysterical and was led from the courtroom by attendants.

Clements, one of the principals in the joint elopement of two Cambridge couples, was found guilty of the abduction of Miss Mary Elna Carpenter, of No. 252 Broadway, Cambridge. He appealed.

Miss Carpenter was placed on probation for six months on the charge of being a stubborn child.

William Bohlck of No. 110 Broadway, and Margaret English, the other couple, told Judge Counihan they were married in Worcester, and produced a marriage certificate signed by a Justice of the Peace.

A stubborn child charge against the English girl was continued until March 16, when she must produce a city record of their marriage.

The latter couple said Clements and Miss Carpenter had gone to Worcester with them in order to stand up with them at the wedding. Clements returned the next day, and Miss Carpenter a week later.

WOMAN SOLON WINS IN HOUSE DEBATE

The first woman to take part in a debate on the floor of the Massachusetts legislative chamber won her case. Arguments expounded by Representative M. Sylvia Donaldson of Brockton were so convincing that a deafening "No" vote resulted. The bill in question would have changed the title of "tyrant of fifers" to supervisors of attendance."

ISADORA AND HER EXILED MATE

ISADORA DUNCAN AND HUSBAND

Serge Essenin, youthful mate of dancer, who went wild after gay party in Paris Montmartre, hurled a silver bottle at her head and smashed furniture in her suite. After a day in jail she shipped him off to Moscow.

POET AND DANCER FIGHT

Police Interrupt Battle in Paris Between Isadora and Her "Cracked" Husband

By International News Service.

Paris, Feb. 16.—Isadora Duncan, premier danseuse, is through with marriage. The bloom is off the rose and Serge Essenin, the dancer's unthrottled genius hubby, has departed Moscow-ward at her suggestion after one final outburst of temperament which wrecked a suite at the Hotel Crillon and shocked its fashionable clientele.

Today Isadora through a maze of excited gestures, unburdened herself to International News Service.

"I never believed in marriage and I now believe in it less than ever, she declared.

WHY SHE MARRIED SERGE.

"I married Serge only to enable him to get a passport to go to America.

"He is a genius and marriage between artists is impossible." She paused a moment, her eyes lighting up reminiscently. "Serge loves the ground I walk on," she went on, rather defiantly. "But when he goes mad he could kill me. He loves me so much more, then.

"For four months I worked with Serge. He is the loveliest boy in the world, but a victim of fate—like all geniuses. He's cracked. I've given up hope of ever curing him of his occasional madness.

"When American women read your interview I can just hear them say, 'that awful thing, but what could you expect from that immoral woman?'" Isadora continued.

AMERICANS ARE CRUEL.

"You Americans are cruel. You make a joke of everything. This is tragedy.

"It is absolutely false to say that we quarelled. Serge suffered untold agonies during the war and they have affected his sensitive nature. He returned after having been wounded three times at the front in badly shell-shocked condition, only to suffer torture during the revolution."

Serge spent a day in a Paris jail following his temperamental burst of speed in Isadora's apartment.

SERGE'S GAY NIGHT.

The details are more or less of a mystery. Best information is that Serge displayed a spell of temperament following a gay night in the Montmartre district. When he returned to Isadora's suite in the Hotel Crillon he tried to re-enact the Moscow revolution. Not only conventions, but much furniture was broken.

When police arrived Essenin was in the act of throwing a silver-topped bottle, while Miss Duncan, clad in a lacy night gown, was trying to hide behind a bedstead.

Serge was hustled to jail and his departure from Paris followed. He was confident that Isadora would soon join him in the Soviet capital. Meanwhile Isadora has moved to the Hotel Du Louvre.

TRAP ALLEGED STRANGLER IN PHONE BOOTH

New York, Feb. 16 (By International News Service).—Robert McGrath, alias Robert Downey, probably will be taken to Jersey City police headquarters today charged with the murder of seventeen-year-old Christina Hervish last November.

And all because of a telephone call he made last night.

Trapped in a 'phone booth on the Bowery by detectives while he was talking to Police Captain Michael Kelly at Jersey City, Downey first confessed that he strangled the Wallingford (N. J.) girl, but later repudiated his confession.

"I want to tell you that the wrong man has been arrested for killing Christina Hervish," were the startling words which Captain Kelley heard over the telephone.

"Trace this call while I hold him in conversation," Kelley whispered to a subordinate.

While the subordinate, on another phone, was asking Central to trace the call, the unknown continued talking.

"That fellow Ellers that they're holding in Boston—he's the wrong man," he said.

"How do you know he's the wrong man?" the captain asked.

"I know who strangled Christina Hervish—I ought to know," the unknown replied. He emphasized the word "ought." "It wasn't Ellers who killed Christina. It was—it was—a man named Downey strangled her."

Downey was held in conversation and five minutes later three detectives with drawn revolvers approached the 'phone booth and the occupant was dragged out.

VANDERBILT KIN IS DIVORCED FROM FABRI

Paris, Feb. 16.—The former Edith Shepard, granddaughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt, has obtained her divorce from Ernesto Fabri, Jr., former president of the Society of Italian Immigrants of New York. She alleged desertion and non-support, and is given custody of the two children.

Ernesto is the son of Ernesto Fabri, at one time member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company. He and his brother Allesandro Fabri were under surveillance by the American government during the war because of the discovery of a powerful wireless station on the Fabri estate at Bar Harbor, Me.

A complaint came from the British Embassy that the German government was obtaining wireless information in this country concerning the movements of English warships, at a time when wireless communication with Germany and this country was supposed to be under a strict censorship.

Information reached Washington that the operations of British ships were being sent to New York from Bar Harbor and other Maine points. Secret service men were rushed to Maine, and every amateur wireless outfit in the State was looked into. There were found to be twenty-one of them in Maine, and the most powerful and fully equipped was the one on the Fabri estate.

No action was taken against the brothers, but their wireless plant was under watch for the balance of the war.

WHISKEY AGENT ARRESTED FOR BIG RUM THEFT

Chicago, Feb. 16.—H. Alfred Morton, Chicago agent for B. M. McCluskey & Sons, Louisville, Ky., distillers, who last Wednesday reported the theft of $175,000 worth of bonded whiskey from the concern's warehouse here, was under arrest today.

On Monday Federal agents said, they intercepted a shipment of 429 cases of whiskey consigned to Morton at the warehouse.

The shipment, according to Federal agents, was moving illegally, and they waited for a robbery report when Morton found out that his replacements had been seized.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., Payne Whitney and E. S. Harkness have given $6,000,000 to New York's public library. Rockefeller gave half. The money will be used entirely in the reference department. Libraries also are on a big scale in America.

WHO GIVES MONEY by millions to libraries shoots his arrows in the air, not knowing exactly where they will drop. They may possibly drop on his own head, for books start thinking, and thinking starts many other things.

Voltaire, under the heading, "Statesmen," in his philosophical dictionary, said he wrote not for statesmen of his day, but for young people that would read and manage things later. He made his last trip to Paris to die, after eighty, just too soon to see the French Revolution.

PARIS NEWSPAPERS upbraid England, and Bonar Law especially, because of Law's blunt disapproval of the Ruhr invasion. "England Beware!" is the heading in one paper. The well-known French writer, "Pertinax," accuses England of encouraging Germany, thus prolonging German resistance. It seems like old days when England's name in France was "Perfidious Albion."

MEANWHILE, THE GERMANS, with their sorrows of invasion, have stopped reparation payments to France. And the timid German mark lifts up its head still higher. That pleases the German workman, not the German financier. As the mark goes up in value, German stocks drop.

CROWLEY BUYS HANDY BAG FOR WIFE

The Boston American Handy Bag has been officially endorsed by Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley.

The "super" made a careful examination of one of the bags and then chirped: "Just the thing for Mrs. Crowley. I have had my eye out for something just like this for a long time."

So, folks, what do you think of that?

And what is even more, the "super's" sons are going to get bags for their wives. So there must be some real class and merit to these Handy Bags when a right smart fellow like the Boston police head takes one home.

Get in line. Clip TODAY'S coupon. Then cut out one on each of the next two days and then come to the Boston American office, pay thirty-three cents and get yours. And, listen, do it NOW. The time is SHORT.

BARRYMORE TO APPEAR IN FILMS

New York, Feb. 16.—Once more the motion picture steps out in the society of dramatic aristocracy. Closely following the announcement that Warner Brothers, an independent film producing company, had persuaded David Belasco to release three of his important plays for the silver screen, it is learned that John Barrymore has been engaged by the Warners to do "Beau Brummel" and probably "Deburau," the latter a Belasco play.

MYSTERY VEILS SLAYING OF AVIATOR

By International News Service.

Los Angeles, Feb. 16.—The body of Earl Remington, aviator and Los Angeles business man, was found in the yard of his home in the exclusive Wilshire district today riddled with bullets.

Remington had apparently been killed by some one who had laid in wait for him. His body was found on the lawn.

The body was discovered by a neighbor, who told the police she heard a number of pistol reports, but believed them to be the back fire of Remington's automobile.

Remington evidently had made an effort to protect himself, for a leather portfolio he was carrying was held against his breast. It was punctured by bullets.

TWO FAMILIES FLEE BLAZE IN SAUGUS

Several men, women and children were rescued from a burning two-family house at No. 5 Stocker street, East Saugus, today.

The house was occupied by the Hardy and Churchyard families. Lester and Lawrence Morse, who live across the street, rushed into the burning house when the fire department was helayed because of the heavy snow.

They brought out Lloyd, eleven years old; Muriel, eight, and Earl, four, the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Hardy, who managed to escape unassisted.

Horace Churchyard, sixteen years old, carried out his mother, Mrs. Charles Churchyard, who had fallen downstairs in her effort to escape, twisting her ankle. The older Churchyard assisted his two sons, Charles, Jr., nineteen, and Graham, fourteen, to escape. The fire, cause unknown, destroyed the building with a loss of $3,500.

FIREMEN AVERT MANCHESTER LOSS

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 16. (By International News Service).—Quick action of firemen probably saved the lives of many persons and a building from destruction today when fire broke out in the Daniel bottling plant, where a hundred tubes of carbonic gas were stored. With a strong wind blowing the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before serious damage was done.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia To Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidences of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

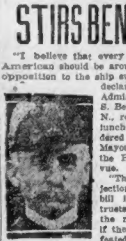
ACTOR AVERTS FIRE PANIC IN SALEM

Salem, Feb. 16.—A fire panic was averted in the Empire Theatre by Kalman Matus, an actor, who stopped the performance to reassure the audience that there was no danger. Fear of fire was aroused when several youths after gaining entrance to the gallery from the fire escape ran noisily out by the exits.

Several of the audience hurriedly left their seats, one declaring that he had heard a cry of fire. The remainder, however, were held by the quick action of the actor, and the turning on of the lights convinced them that they were in no danger.

OPPOSITION TO SHIP SUBSIDY STIRS BENSON

"I believe that every red-blooded American should be aroused by the opposition to the ship subsidy bill," declared Rear Admiral William S. Benson, U. S. N., retired, at a luncheon tendered him by Mayor Curley at the Hotel Bellevue.



Rear Admiral W. S. Benson.

"The chief objections to the bill is that the trusts will get the money, but if the bill is defeated, it will be impossible to keep the shipping business out of the trusts.

STRANGLE HOLD ON HUB.

"Here in Boston they will have the same strangle hold on shipping as other ports. I hold no brief in a business sense for the American Merchant Marine and am not interested in it, except as a national problem.

"One cannot question its absolute necessity in time of war as an auxiliary to the navy. If we are going to maintain our equality we must have a Merchant Marine.

MUST GO OVER SEAS.

"The enemy in the future must come over the sea and we must go over the sea. America does not want to fight a defensive war. We are not built that way. We are equal to any other power on earth in a naval sense. To maintain so we must keep up our material, equipment and personnel."

A veiled reference to England was made by the admiral when he said, "It is so easy to let our foreign competitors deceive us. They are simply appealing to popular propaganda with no sound basis, so that every red-blooded American should be aroused to the opposition."

Old-Fashioned Bacony Flavor

If your mind goes back to the deep, rich, old-fashioned flavors of years gone by, you will find Ferris Bacon truly delightful.

For today, this delicious bacon is still made by exactly the same unhurried process that the house of Ferris developed sixty years ago. In all these years no one has ever found a way to produce more tender meat or a more appealing symphony of flavors.

The good old days of good things to eat are still here for the homes that insist upon Ferris Bacon.

FERRIS BACON

"The old-fashioned flavor that's always new!"

NO WORK FOR LA MONTAGNES IN JAIL

Newark, N. J., Feb. 16.—"Pretty good for 75 cents a day," remarked Montague La Montagne, one of the four wealthy brothers jailed as society bootleggers, after their first prison luncheon of roast beef, mashed potatoes, and the choice of coffee or chocolate.

La Montagne was referring to the 75 cents a day the government allows the Essex County Jail for the daily food of a Federal prisoner.

Arriving at the jail in a taxicab, the brothers were assigned cells, after being registered. William and Rene, the famous polo players, were placed in adjoining cells, Montague was separated from Rene by one cell and there was another cell between Montague and Morgan. Their nearest cellmates are four men convicted of tampering with the immigration laws.

The jail routine calls for no work for the prisoners in the division to which the La Montagnes are assigned, at least for the present. One of them has two months to go and the others four months each. They may get some time off for good behavior. They rise at 7.30, breakfast at 8 and the rest of the day is theirs to visit one another, play dominoes, read or exercise in the corridors. At 8.30 p. m. they retire.

WAR VETS' SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

At a well-attended meeting of the Suffolk County Council, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the following officers were elected: William A. Parr, chairman; Alfred Moran, vice-chairman; William C. Sweeney, secretary; Joseph Feraaky, historian; Harry Goldberg, treasurer, and Carl Elsing, sergeant-at-arms. The executive committeemen chosen were John Wallace, Charles Armour and Daniel McCarthy.

ACTOR JAILED; DID NOT PAY ALIMONY

New York, Feb. 16.—After a wait of three hours in front of the Friars' Club, Deputy Sheriff Murphy arrested Arman Kalis, an actor residing temporarily in the club, on an order of complaint signed by Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel.

Kalis was locked up in Ludlow Street Jail. The order was signed November 9 last, but Kalis, a member of the Winter Garden "Passing Show of 1922," was in Chicago at the time.

The basis of the order is a default in the payment of $1,970 alimony at the rate of $100 per week to his wife, Amelia Stone Kalis, a vaudeville performer, granted by the Supreme Court two years ago.

IRISH PRAISE STAND OF CARDINAL LOGUE

A cable to Cardinal Logue, commending his lenten pastoral to the diocese of Armagh, has been sent by the Greater Boston Council, Friends of Irish Freedom. The resolution was inspired by the text of a telegram alleged to have been sent the cardinal by John F. Finerty, from Washington, in which it was stated that "all Americans view with regret the moral breakdown of the Catholic hierarchy in Ireland and America."

Boston Colony in Bermuda Has Many New Arrivals, Betty Alden Hears

By BETTY ALDEN.

MR. AND MRS. AMORY S. CARHART (Isadora Bliss) are spending a few weeks at Hamilton, Bermuda, where the Winter colony is steadily on the increase. Also sojourning at Bermuda are the Lars Andersons of "Weld," Brookline, who will probably spend some time at their Washington home upon concluding their visit to Bermuda.

The Carharts—he's a member of the Harvard '20 class—are among the leading members of the younger-married set at Tuxedo Park, where they have a country home. This Winter they have again taken an apartment in New York on Park avenue. Mrs. Carhart, who's a member of the Vincent Club and the 1917 Sewing Circle here, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester W. Bliss of Commonwealth avenue, who are spending the Winter in California at Santa Barbara. Mrs. Carhart is, I believe, a second cousin of Mrs. Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner Coolidge of Commonwealth avenue and Mrs. E. Preble Motley of Beacon street are to join the Boston colony in Bermuda early in March, planning to spend a month there.

ON Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week there's to be a sale of novels—modern and classic—at the White Elephant Shop, No. 657 Boylston street. Mrs. Allen Curtis, who had charge of the three-day sale of Valentine candy held at the shop this week, is to have charge of the novel sale. The proceeds, of course, will help swell the emergency fund for Russian refugees, in whose aid the shop is being run.

WHAT with the keenly-anticipated Bachelors' Dance at the Somerset and the last of the Junior Supper Dances at the Copley-Plaza, this evening promises to find practically all society "on its toes."

Amory Coolidge, son of Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge of Beacon street, has charge of the invitations for the Bachelors—I believe there are eighteen of these unattached gentlemen—are playing hosts in return for the hospitalities extended to them during the season. Among the "eligibles" are included Russell B. Codman, Jr., Harold Amory, Dudley L. Pickman, Jr., and Samuel Hooper-Hooper.

AS for the Junior Supper Dance, tonight marks the close, for the season, of these delightful affairs. Modelled after the Senior Supper Dances, they've made no end of a hit among the buds, the girls who've been out a year or more, and some of the "younger-marrieds."

Of the committee for this series is slender, hazel-eyed Mrs. Arthur L. Richmond, who, as Jessie Means, has added to the entertainment of several Vincent Club shows. She's the daughter of Mrs. Arthur Little, her sisters being Mrs. A. Nicholas Reggio (Claire Means) and Mrs. Valentine Worthington (Nan Means).

Also on the committee for these junior dances are the Misses Marion Fenno, Louise Fessenden, Ella Snelling, Frances and Mary Weld and Mrs. Francis B. Lothrop, as well as Messrs. Charles Cabot, Chandler Bigelow, Jr., Robert W. Emmons, 3rd, Lawrence Foster and James J. Lee.

Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell, Mrs. Matthew Luce, Mrs. Cameron McRae Winslow and Mrs. Bernard W. Trafford are among the matrons giving dinners before the dance.

THE indoor polo tournaments being held at the Commonwealth Armory are proving no end popular—indoor polo being a distinct innovation hereabouts.

Tonight the 101st Artillery team plays the Myopia men, the latter team including such crack players as the Burrage brothers.

3 OVERCOME IN $40,000 NEW BEDFORD FIRES

New Bedford, Feb. 16.—Damage aggregating $40,000 was caused by two serious fires. An apartment house in Armour street and a building in the business section were burned. Fred R. Thackeray, assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and his wife were overcome by smoke after passing the unconscious form of their three-year-old child out a window to firemen. They were rescued. All three are recovering. The building and merchandise of the Union Paper & Supply Company was damaged badly in the other blaze.

NEW YORK SOCIETY WOMAN GETS DIVORCE

Paris, Feb. 16.—The former Edith Shepard of New York, who is related to the Vanderbilts, obtained a divorce from Ernesto Abri. She alleged desertion and non-support. She was granted the custody of their two children.

Mrs. Michael Tuchien, formerly Alexandra Bellono, of Chicago, was granted a divorce on the ground of desertion.

RICH MEN PAID FOR LIQUOR AT RAIDED PARTY

Details of the Beacon street party which ended in a raid, obtained today by the Boston American, reveal it to have been of long duration.

The affair began a week ago and continued almost uninterruptedly until the time the police arrived, gathered in the bathing Muriel Bateaux or Woodworth and bound her to a stretcher as the only means of removing her from the scene of the festivities.

Enough liquor to stock the average cellar for a season was consumed by the gay celebrants. In addition to Muriel, who, it is alleged, did her share of the drinking and as a result is a patient in the City Hospital, there were present at the party, among others, two wealthy Swedish young men who for the past few weeks have been doing the "interesting" spots of Boston.

They did it in high style, too, carrying a servant who not only drove their expensive limousine, but acted as interpreter for the young men, and supplied the liquor for the party.

As a result of the orgy the occupants of the apartment have been ordered out of the building. Other women in the party included Peggy Murray, daughter of the lessee of the apartment, and Helen George, a young woman known to the police. She has figured in several court episodes within the past years, under various aliases, including Mae Wolf and Helen Grace, they say.

MME. NOVAES SOLOIST WITH HARVARD GLEE

By ZOE FAHER.

Mme. Guiomar Novaes, Brazilian pianiste, well known in this country, was soloist at the second concert of the Harvard Glee Club, Dr. Davidson conducting, at Symphony Hall. Mme. Novaes chose to play an entire group of Chopin in her first of two appearances for the evening. The second group consisted of two numbers—"Mephisto Valse" by Liszt.

It is undeniable that the artistry of Mme. Novaes had far broader scope in the Chopin of which she is an interpreter, who is far more interesting than others more celebrated. Her tone is big, broad and yet with a fascinating spectrum of advancing and receding color. The audience received her very warmly with much appreciation of her fine musicianship.

AMNESIA VICTIM IS DORCHESTER WOMAN

The woman found wandering in Dorchester suffering from amnesia, who could not tell her name or where she lived, was identified at the City Hospital as Mrs. Edward J. Sullivan of No. 68 Bellevue street, Dorchester. The identification was made by her husband. At the hospital she is in a semi-stupor.

will soon banish backache, headache, restlessness, hot flashes and chills, accompanied by scanty flow of dark, colorful urine, frequent desires, with pains and pressure in bladder region, and a burning, smarting sensation after voiding, pains in groin, swelling of feet and ankles, rheumatism, dizziness, mental depression, insomnia, and a tired "all in" feeling (bad medicines, perhaps, a "kidney-poisoned" system).

Mr. John Shore, 1161 South A St., Fort Smith, Ark., writes: "I have been taking your Baimwort Tablets for a very bad case of kidney trouble. I had to get up six or seven times a night, but since taking them I can sleep peacefully all night and do not have any more trouble."

Alice Trobaugh, 5427 South Twenty-fourth St., Omaha, Nebr., writes: "I have used one tube of your Baimwort Tablets and find that they are the best I have ever used for kidney and bladder trouble."

RADIO WRINKLE SAVES DRILLING OF HOLES

A neat method of mounting a vacuum tube socket behind a panel, which obviates the necessity of drilling extra holes in the panel for supporting the socket, is offered in the vacuum tube contest by Roland Budd of Boston.

Mr. Budd also submits a remarkably neatly drawn diagram to illustrate the wrinkle.

Here is how he did it:

"First I procured a piece of brass, 1-16 inch thick and 2½ inches long by 2½ inches wide. Then I drilled and tapped my telephone jack for an 8-32 inch screw. Then with a countersunk hole in the brass plate I fastened it to the jack as shown in the accompanying sketch.

"Then on the plate I mounted the tube socket. Thus, by drilling only one hole in the panel to accommodate the jack itself, a very satisfactory mounting was made for the tube socket. This idea can be used for more than one tube by lengthening the brass plate to accommodate the required number of tubes, and using more than one jack to support it."

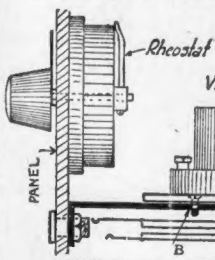
While Mr. Budd does not mention it, we presume that the brass plate must also be drilled to accommodate small brass bolts and nuts to hold the socket on the brass plate. Sockets vary in the number and position of these holes.

While we are on the subject of panels, H. C. Halen of No. 138 Walnut street, Everett, offers a clever method of wiring a set without soldering.

"A lot of people have more or less trouble in making a neat, solid joint when soldering. Recently I tried using No. 7 bare copper wire instead of bus bar by merely bending to the required shape and threading the ends.

"Nearly all screw threads used on radio apparatus are also 6-32, and most of the connections can be made by screwing the end of the wire into the proper place and holding by nuts wherever necessary."

METHOD OF MOUNTING SOCKET FOR TUBE



BOSTON FAN OFFERS IDEA

A convenient method of mounting a vacuum tube socket. A brass plate, two and one-half by two and one-half inches, (A) is mounted on a telephone jack, to which it is held by a single machine screw. (B) the brass plate is also drilled for the screws which hold the socket.

COAL CRISIS DUE RAIL PLOT, SAYS N. Y. HEALTH HEAD

BLAME PUT ON "BIG FIVE" ROADS AND MINE OWNERS

New York, Feb. 16.—Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland charged today that the coal famine is due to these causes:

Collusion, if not actual conspiracy, among the "Big five" railroad companies and the mine operators to limit the supply and transportation.

Lockouts of shop craftmen, resulting in demoralization of the rolling stock.

Refusal of railroad officials to approve agreements as to wages, hours and other working conditions between their representatives and the employes.

H. S. Copeland

Defiance by the railroad companies of laws compelling them to fulfill their duties as public utility corporations.

FOR CURATIVE LEGISLATION.

Dr. Copeland intimated that when he takes his seat in the Senate next month he will urge curative legislation. He said:

"A ten-minute conference among public spirited railroad officials and mine operators, if there are any, would settle all controversies, and the people who freeze because of the failure of those men to perform their duties would get the relief they demanded.

"The situation is critical, but I doubt that these officials can be forced to act except upon a nation-wide public demand.

FIVE RAILROAD OFFENDERS.

"The chief railroad company offenders are the Lehigh Valley, The Lackawanna, The Delaware & Hudson, the Central of New Jersey and the Pennsylvania.

"None of these companies is giving the people a square deal. There appears to be an understanding between their officials and the mining operatives they control to dig as little coal as possible and transport it at pleasure. There is plenty of coal. There are plenty of men to dig it.

"There are plenty of cars to transport it, except perhaps in the case of the Lehigh Valley. Then why should the people suffer from cold"

4,300 CARS UNMOVED.

"Last Saturday there stood in the Lehigh yards in the mining region 4,300 cars, loaded to the rims with anthracite coal. There were 100 trains of forty cars each. But these trains did not move.

"If the death rate of New York and other cities continues to increase the responsibility must rest upon the shoulders of the five railroad companies which carry the bulk of the coal and the mine operators, who are controlled in almost all instances by these companies. These railroad companies are public utility corporations.

"My patience is all but exhausted. It is time the people get the unvarnished truth. Tens of thousands of lives are in peril. The railroad and mining companies—the latter being in the main controlled by the railroad companies—can save those lives if they will."

Sen. Walsh Raps Congress for Coal Shortage

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 16.—Criticising the government for remaining inactive in the coal situation while scores are dying from influenza caused by lack of heat, United States Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts declared a new political party should organize and demand the reform of Congress. He termed the work of the House of Representatives "cheap vaudeville."

"There is a vast feeling of unrest among the people of the United States today," he said. "They are losing confidence in the government. Twenty thousand petitions are before Congress today for changes in legislation and only 2 per cent. will receive attention.

"Why shouldn't there be unrest when our government remains powerless and lets people suffer for coal?

"The citizens don't blame the operators or the miners. They blame the government."

DIDN'T HOG COAL, SAYS FROTHINGHAM

Brockton, Feb. 16.—Congressman Louis A. Frothingham of the Fourteenth District, who was accused by Joseph La Fontaine of securing a carload of coal for his North Easton estate while doing nothing to relieve the general shortage, wires a denial from Washington. La Fontaine was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress last Fall.

"I did not know that any coal had arrived. I was busy trying to get coal for those in our employ and needy families," the Congressman stated. "Congress cannot act directly but can merely authorize somebody else to act on the coal situation. I have introduced in Congress several resolutions for coal embargoes."

MAYNARD SUFFERS IN COAL FAMINE

Maynard, Feb. 16.—Not a shovelful of hard coal and little bituminous is for sale in Maynard. The supply of wood is almost exhausted. As a result, Maynard families are desperate in their losing fight to keep their homes warm. Those who have been buying coal by the bag are the worst sufferers. The 2,600 employes of the Assabet Mills, however, have divided thirty carloads of coal which the mill officials purchased and distributed at cost.

"Fireproof" Coal Sale Charged in Warrant

The alleged sale of "fireproof" coal has resulted in difficulties for the Adams Coal Company of Beacon street. Inspectors Healey and O'Neil of the Cambridge department of weights and measures obtained a warrant against the concern following analysis of "coal" they sold "in the bag." Oscar Bates of M. I. T. analyzed the contents of a twenty-five pound bag and found that 90 per cent. of the "coal" was non-combustible. Getting money under false pretenses is the charge.

URGES AMERICA TO PRODUCE OWN RUBBER

By Cosmopolitan News Service

New York, Feb. 16.—America as a great producer of crude rubber, wresting from Great Britain the virtual monopoly now held in that industry, is the vision today of far-sighted business men and statesmen.

Already sufficient facts are at hand to show it is feasible to create a rubber industry to compete with England in the Philippine Islands, in Venezuela, Guatemala, Western Mexico, Panama, Ecuador, Colombia and Brazil.

The investigation of United States territories capable of rubber production proposed by Secretary of Commerce Hoover will have the indorsement of the American people and American business especially, F. R. Henderson, president of the Rubber Trade Association of New York said today.

He declared the high export tax imposed by Great Britain adds $100,000,000 a year to the cost Americans consumers pay for rubber: 80 per cent. of the world's plantation rubber is raised under British control and the automobile industry, using 80 per cent. of the rubber absorbed in the United States will save a huge sum if American-raised rubber can be sold cheaper than at present.

There are so many ways to serve Kellogg's Bran—the one great aid to humanity!

You will enjoy eating Kellogg's Bran because its nut-like flavor appeals to the taste. And, think what a mouthful is doing to drive constipation out of your system and to establish health! That's because it is ALL BRAN. Kellogg's Bran is scientifically made to relieve suffering humanity—IT WILL DO THAT AS NO OTHER FOOD CAN!

Physicians recommend the regular use of Kellogg's Bran for mild or chronic cases and as a preventive. Bran, eaten each day and in proper quantity, sweeps, cleanses and purifies the alimentary tract.

Get away from pills and cathartics—Kellogg's Bran will give you permanent relief from constipation.

Do not confuse Kellogg's Bran with common bran. Kellogg's is cooked, crumbled and ready to serve. It can be used in the most delightful baking products without in any way reducing its regulatory value. Try raisin bread or muffins or griddle-cakes made with Kellogg's Bran. Recipes are printed on each package.

Kellogg's Bran is nationally eaten for health's sake as a cereal—in winter time with hot milk. Others prefer it sprinkled over hot or cold cereals. Another way is to mix it with hot cereals just before serving. It can also be cooked with cereal. In each case add two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's Bran for each person; in chronic cases as much with each meal.

Kellogg's Bran is sold by all grocers and is supplied in individual packages at first-class hotels and clubs. Ask for it at your restaurant!

2 BRITISH DRY BILLS BEFORE PARLIAMENT

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 16.—The groundwork for what is expected to be the first debate in the British Parliament on a measure for total prohibition was laid today when two private member bills dealing with the liquor question were introduced and read in the House of Commons.

The most sweeping bill was that sponsored by Edwin Scrymgeour, prohibition member for Dundee, backed by two or three labor members who are teetotalers. This measure would prohibit the manufacture, importation and sale of alcoholic liquors in the United Kingdom.

The other measure was introduced by Lady Astor, It would amend the law with regard to the sale of intoxicating liquor to young persons.

Syrup Pepsin Loved By Hosts of Babies

Half a teaspoonful will make a fretful youngster happy and playful

THE mother has her choice of many remedies for her baby's minor ills, but she should be careful which remedy she selects lest she do the child harm. What might be safe for herself may do injury to an infant. You will find that if the little one cries and doesn't want to play that its bowels are constipated. First look carefully to the diet and give the child one-half teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You will then see results in a few hours. You will not have to force it on babies or children: they actually ask for it, it is so pleasant-tasting and free from griping.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The ingredients are stated on the package. It is a mild, gentle vegetable laxative that everyone finds effective and pleasant. It is better for you and yours than purgatives, coal-tar drugs, or salt waters and powders, which may concentrate the blood and dry up the skin; or mercurial calomel, which may salivate and loosen the teeth.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Use a safe laxative like Syrup Pepsin, and especially for the children, for invalids, growing girls, nursing mothers, elderly people, and persons recently operated upon who need bowel action with the least strain. Mrs. Lillian Bennington of Woodruff, S. C., always gives her children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. A. E. Blondin of Muskegon, Mich., will not have any other laxative in her home. Your druggist will supply you, and it only costs a cent a dose. Try it in constipation, colic, biliousness, flatulency, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

SOUTH BOSTON GIRL LEAPS THREE STORIES INTO LIFE NET AT FIRE

the spectators and failed to find all the members of his family, so he ran to the front window and shattered it with his fist, then clambered in and raced through the house.

While he was inside his mother fainted in an upper hallway while running from room to room to see that all her children were out. She was carried to safety by Hoseman Thomas McLoughlin of Engine 5.

A faithful fox terrier saved the lives of the Murphys by his barking. Flames were creeping within a few inches of the bed where the father and mother were sleeping when they were awakened.

The mother took six-months-old Mildred in her arms and the father carried out Edward, two; Alice, four; Francis, Jr., seven, and Mary, nine, making two trips. The three young girl children are in a rather serious condition because of exposure. They have been under physician's care for two weeks because of whooping cough.

Conners, a motorman on the Boston Elevated, had gone to work and Frederick, fifteen, was just leaving to get his morning papers, when he smelled smoke and looked into the pantry. This was ablaze.

He ran upstairs to where William, twenty-six, the oldest, was sleeping. The older brother ordered Frederick to warn the family while he sprinted to sound an alarm from Box 7423, a short distance away.

All but Helen sensed the danger immediately. She is a sound sleeper, and it was just the few seconds' delay that imperiled her life. The others in the family are John, Mildred and Thomas.

When the firemen arrived they experienced difficulty with the hydrant. This appeared to be frozen, neighbors say, but the firemen said that the trouble was due to some other cause, but when asked about it by reporters they refused to talk. Whatever the reason, the water did not come for some minutes and this gave the fire greater headway.

The Conners house was burned to the ground. The family lost everything. All but Frederick were forced to flee in their night clothes. The temperature then was hovering around six degrees above zero. They owned the house.

Blaze on C Street Routs Four Families

Four families were driven to the street today by a fire which started in the basement of Philip Kaufman's grocery store at Nos. 106-108 C street, South Boston. Dense smoke swept up through the three-story structure and through the house adjoining at No. 75 Sixth street.

Kaufman's family was forced to flee to the street and in the Sixth street house the smoke drove out the family of Hiram McLean. Mrs. Grace Downey and her year-old infant and Mrs. Hannah Murphy.

Dorchester Building Burns With $5,000 Loss

Fire today destroyed the three-story building at No. 200 Woodrow avenue, Dorchester. The tenants were able to get out without difficulty. The blaze started from an overheated furnace. Damage is estimated at $5,000. The building is owned by Joseph Lasoff of No. 40 Lucerne street, Dorchester.

PRE-HISTORIC TABLET FOUND IN OLD MINE

Sonora, Cal., Feb. 16.—A slab of granite bearing hieroglyphics believed to have been carved in prehistoric days has been found by miners more than 200 feet beneath the lava flow which created Springfield flat, the famous gold bearing area at Columbia, noted as a Bonanza town in the gold rush of 1849. The stone is twelve inches long and nine inches wide. The characters are three to four inches high. The stone will be sent to the University of California for deciphering.

FOLLIES GIRL WEDS, BUT NOT MILLIONAIRE

New York, Feb. 16.—Another "Ziegfeld Follies" girl has married and to the amusement of all the members of the company the young lady calmly announced that her husband was not a millionaire.

The happy bride is Fern Oakley, a beautiful blond. She is a native of Toronto. The bridegroom is John Wilton Crosby, formerly a moving picture leading man and now personal representative of several well known screen stars.

CHARGE $6,500 SWINDLE TO LAND AGENT

Another alleged real estate swindle scheme was exposed when George H. Bowles was arrested by Police Inspectors Kilday and Murphy on a warrant charging larceny of $6,850 in money from a Dorchester man and his wife.

Bowles, who is twenty-seven years old and lives at No. 8, Woodleigh street, Dedham, was arrested in his real estate offices at No. 73 Cornhill, which take up the whole fourth floor. On not being able to furnish bail of $5,000 as set by Judge Creed in the Municipal Court, he was committed to the city prison. The police believe he has swindled hundreds of other persons by selling them property that did not belong to him.

The warrant charges larceny of $6,000 from Patrick O'Donnell, of No. 18 Howell street, Dorchester, and $450 from Catherine O'Donnell of the same address on January 8.

WORCESTER MAN DIES IN SING SING

Ossining, N. Y., Feb. 16.—Joseph Zambelli, twenty-six, died praying when he and Airlo Westling, forty, were electrocuted at Sing Sing prison for murders.

Westling walked into the same death chamber three minutes after Zambelli was dead. He was accompanied by Dr. Patterson, and he, too, prayed while being prepared for the chair.

Westling was convicted of killing Carl Moller, a jeweler, at his home in the Bronx a year ago.

Residents of Worcester, Mass., where Westling was a church member, petitioned Governor Smith that the death sentence be changed to one of life imprisonment.

Zambelli was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Joseph Holbach, in a hotel at South Ozone Park, Long Island, during a robbery four years ago.

ALLIES AWARD ALL MEMEL TO LITHUANIA

Paris, Feb. 16. (By International News Service).—The city and district of Memel (formerly German territory) was awarded to Lithuania today by the Inter-allied Council of Ambassadors. After the war the Memel district was taken over by the Allied and associated Powers and created into a neutral zone. A month ago Lithuanian irregulars seized the city, establishing a provisional government.

Lithuanians and Poles in Battle

Copenhagen, Feb. 16 (By International News Service).—Fighting between Poles and Lithuanians with many casualties on both sides was reported from Warsaw today. Hostilities began when the Poles undertook to occupy the neutral zone set aside by the League of Nations. Lithuanians destroyed railway bridges on the Grodno-Vilna line and are preparing further attacks.

There has been bitter feeling between the Lithuanians and Poles ever since Polish troops seized Vilna at the close of the Russo-Polish war.

WALTHAM MAN TO BE FREED IN MURDER CASE

Charles La Bou of Waltham will be freed, it is expected, as a result of repudiation by Gordon Warren of the "confession" in which he declared La Bou and he killed a Waltham milk driver in 1918.

"I am going to the electric chair for something I did not do. I lied in my confession. I know nothing about the murder," the second statement read.

Warren confessed from his cell in Deer Island. Officials believe he was inspired by Jesse Murphy's exploit in gaining freedom from Pennsylvania. His sanity is being questioned now and a further investigation by District Attorney Reading will lead probably to the release of La Bou, who has consistently protested his innocence. He is said to furnished an alibi by a diary.

CHILDREN WELCOMED BY THIS LANDLADY

Mrs. Mary J. Borhek advertised a ten-room house in Dorchester to rent with "Children Welcome." She is a widow, lives at No. 4 Lyndhurst street, Dorchester, and is the mother of three grown sons.

"I think it wicked for people to own houses and prohibit families having little ones renting them," Mrs. Borhek said. "I have owned the house in question for a number of years. The present occupants have several children, the youngest three years of age, the eldest thirteen. The house has not been injured in any way."

DAD GILLOOLY HAS PARTY FOR BABY

Residents of the King street section of Dorchester were reminded of July Fourth, when John B. Gillooly, sporting editor of the Boston American, celebrated the sixth visit of the stork to his home on King street with fireworks.

The neighborhood was aroused by the noise and the illuminated sky, and many of the neighbors believed it to be an explosion.

After the fireworks Mr. and Mrs. Gillooly gave a party. Mrs. Gillooly and the baby are doing fine.

STERN WARNING DISPATCHED TO TURKS

London, Feb. 16. (By International News Service).—A stern note of warning was sent to Turkey today by the Allied Powers, it was announced at the Foreign Office.

The Turks were notified the Allies absolutely refuse to obey the demand for withdrawal of foreign warships from the Turkish ports of Smyrna and Ismid.

Turkey is warned "not to attempt any offensive steps." Admiralty officials say there are only a few mines in Smyrna Harbor and full precautions have been taken to guard against danger there.

PROTEST RETIRING OF GEN. CRONKHITE

Washington, Feb. 16.—The War Department considers the enforced retirement of Major General Adelbert Cronkhite a closed incident, and Secretary Weeks declined to comment on the action of Senator Glass of Virginia, calling for a reopening of the case. Friends of the retired commander of the Eighteenth Division of the A. E. F., in which one son of Senator Glass' sons served, are said to be determined to force a reopening.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Tablespoonful of Jad Salts if Back Pains or Acids Irritate

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year

There are 1923 styles in Phonograph Records, too!

IN A YOUNG MAN or a young nation or a young industry, things happen quickly.

And in the making of records a new star is on the rise.

Last year was the opportunity year for OKeh records. It provided a chance for a "youngster" to prove to the old line makers and to the public that progress in the making of records had not ceased.

Today we are selling nearly four times as many records as we did last year and here, briefly, are the reasons:

1. OKeh records give the dance hits promptly, and give them with new effects and better registration.

2. OKeh records have imported the recordings of the most famous orchestras of Europe, the home of good music. European opera and concert stars are now available through these importations.

3. In vocal numbers, OKeh records have set a new standard for clearness and tone quality.

4. In novelties they have admittedly led the field. The OKeh Laughing Record is one of the greatest sellers the industry has ever known.

Prove how good OKeh records are!

ADDICT PLEADS FOR DOPELESS PRISON

Heller's Back Bay Tenants in Revolt

Coue's Book

SELF MASTERY Through Conscious AUTOSUGGESTION

Only Authorized Book by EMILE COUE

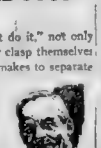
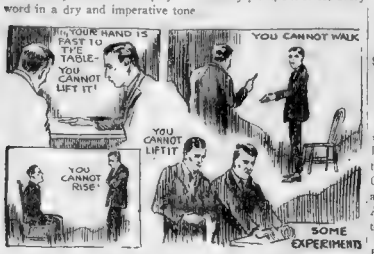
If the subject is thinking properly, "I cannot do it," not only is he unable to separate his fingers, but the latter clasp themselves all the more tightly together the more efforts he makes to separate them. He obtains in fact exactly the contrary to what he wishes. In a few moments say to him: Now think: "I can do it," and his fingers will separate themselves.



Be careful always to keep your eyes fixed on the root of the subject's nose, and do not allow him to turn his eyes away from yours for a single moment. If he is unable to unclasp his hands, do not think it is your own fault, it is the subject's, he has not properly thought: "I cannot." Assure him firmly of this, and begin the experiment again.

Always use a tone of command which suffers no disobedience. I do not mean that it is necessary to raise your voice; on the contrary, it is preferable to employ the ordinary pitch, but stress every word in a dry and imperative tone.



When these experiments have been successful, all the others succeed equally well and can be easily obtained by carrying out to the letter the instructions given above.

Some subjects are very sensitive, and it is easy to recognize them by the fact that the contraction of their fingers and limbs is easily produced. After two or three successful experiments, it is no longer necessary to say to them 'Think this," or "think that"; you need only, for example, say to them simply—but in the imperative tone employed by all good suggestionists—"Close your hands; now you cannot open them." "Shut your eyes; now you cannot open them," and the subject finds it absolutely impossible to open the hands or the eyes in spite of all his efforts. Tell him in a few moments: "You can do it now," and the de-contraction takes place instantaneously.

These experiments can be varied to infinity. Here are a few more: Make the subject join his hands, and suggest that they are welded together; make him put his head on the table, and suggest that it is stuck to it; tell him that he is fixed to his chair and cannot rise; make him rise, and tell him he cannot walk; put a penholder on the table and tell him that it weighs a hundredweight, and that he cannot lift it, etc., etc.

HAVILAND ST. RENTS JUMPED

Second Raise Causes Lessees to Seek Relief of Housing Committee

Tenants of No. 5 Haviland street have filed a protest with Herbert E. Ellis, adjudicator of the Municipal Rent and Housing Committee at City Hall, against an increase in rent asked by Agent Isaac Heller from $57.50 to $70 a month.

Mr. Heller is the same Isaac Heller who came into prominence during the Finance Commission's investigation of the sale of land to the city by the Beth Israel Synagogue in Baldwin Place, North End.

The building is said to be owned by William J. Stover, recently purchased. Heller is the agent. When Mr. Ellis summoned him before the municipal committee Heller refused to volunteer any information about the property or reasons for the increase.

Ellis today sent to tenants petition to the State Board for further investigation. In all probability Mr. Heller will be summoned and forced to tell why he seeks to be half of the April increase asked.

In their petition the tenants state they have been advised by the increase will go into effect March 1, and that as of no fact that the suites have not been kept up repair for some time and also the fact that there was an increase in rent November 1, 1922, they consider that the proposed increase is unfair.

The names signed to the plea those of Frederick M. Nadeau, Jordon Tasile, Theresa M. Collo, Arthur M. Collo and Anna Lou Tondis. The notice in November was 5.

MRS. GEST IS ROBBED OF $7,500 EARRINGS

New York, Feb. 16.—Thieves entered the home of Morris Gest, theatrical producer, at No. 71 East Fifty-Second street three weeks ago, and stole a pair of diamond earrings valued at $7,500, an expensive fur piece and $75 in cash, the property of Mrs. Gest. Mrs. Gest placed more of a sentimental than an intrinsic value on the jewels, as they were a gift from her mother, Mrs. David Belasco.

Tests by Harvard to Reveal Misfits Among Thousands

Experiments Running Through 12 Years to Show Educational Courses Children Should Take

Harvard University is making mental and physical measurements of thousands of children in a great twelve-year investigation to prevent educational misfits, if possible.

Infinite taking of pains is involved in this investigation. Wrist or carpal bones are being photographed by X-Ray. Heads are measured with delicate Swiss anthropometers and fine calipers. Limb and body measurements and height and weight are taken. Even the teeth are counted and examined.

Mentality is measured at the same time by mental tests. Opinion of teachers regarding the various child subjects and information as to home life and environment are added.

TO AVOID MISTAKES.

Out of all this data, renewed from time to time, the scientific investigators will try to discover a definite relation, if any, between the chronological or actual age of the child and its mental growth.

Two years from now or before their data may be obtained and reduced to a basis which will enable a parent or teacher to tell much better than now what educational course a child should take and what goal the child should aim.

Dr. Walter F. Dearborn, head of the Psycho-Educational clinic, at Harvard Graduate School of Education, a new department of psychology, reads the first data. Three thousand children of Greater Boston schools are the subject-material.

WILL MEASURE CHILDREN.

First step in the investigation is taking the X-ray pictures of the child's wrist or carpal bones, which are smaller, more concentrated and easier to photograph than are other bones.

With anthroposometers and calipers head and body measurements are taken—from ear to head top, length, width and circumference of head, arm-length, leg-length, chest depth, width of hips, bones, sitting and standing height and weight.

Mentality is measured by the Dearborn series of general intelligence. Children are asked to tell the drawn impressions of persons, standing, walking, running. Then reading and arithmetic test.

Physical examinations are the same each year, but the mental examinations change to fit the school grade.

EXPECT VALUABLE DATA.

"At the close of this investigation," says Professor Edward A. Lincoln of Dr. Rearborn's staff, "even if two or three years possibly. It is hoped that valuable new standards of weight and height will be evolved. We may find a very close relationship between physical and mental growth of children, and we may not.

"We hope that material will be set forth which will be of great assistance in training children. We hope that the results of the study may furnish valuable data for the use of the vocational guidance bureau to help the child discover what he is best fitted for in life. We will not say that he should be, and so, but it may be possible to advise him."

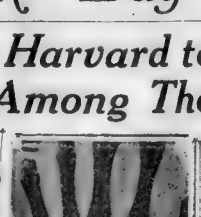
Dr. Dearborn, in charge of this extensive inquiry into childhood, teaches that the time at which a child goes to school should depend on his or her mental age, not actual or chronological age.

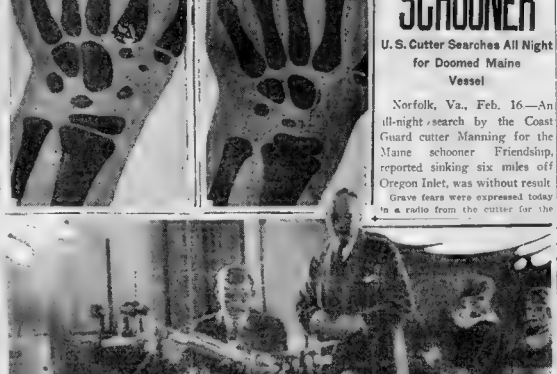
Emphasis is placed on the point that the mental, but actual age should determine the time for a child to begin school.

In other words, if a four-year-old boy passes the tests calculated to a six-year-old boy, he should be allowed to go to school in spite of his being only four.

Suppose your child is one of those being thus measured, photographed and mentally tested from time to time during the twelve-year investigation.

At the end of the twelve years you may know to a degree what has made your child what he or she





X-RAYING WRIST BONES OF CHILDREN

Scene in the psycho-educational clinic of Dr. Walter F. Dearborn of Harvard Graduate School of Medicine. G. Wilson Smith, teaching fellow of Professor Edward A. Lincoln of the Dearborn staff, are watching the X-Raying of the wrists of the children. Above X-Ray photos of left and right wrist or carpal bones of a six-year-old child. As the child grows older the physical growth of the child's bones will be studied through the growth of these carpal bones because they are easier to photograph at the same time the mental growth. It will be studied the relation between the mental and physical growths of each of the children and to determine the reasons for the difference in intelligence among children of the same age.

FEAR LOSS OF SINKING SCHOONER

U. S. Cutter Searches All Night for Doomed Maine Vessel

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 16.—An all-night search by the Coast Guard cutter Manning for the Maine schooner Friendship, reported sinking six miles off Oregon Inlet, was without result.

Grave fears were expressed today in a radio from the cutter for the safety of the schooner's crew of seven men.

The message received yesterday from the Friendship stated that she was sinking at the rate of one foot an hour. She was making about six knots an hour toward Cape Henry, but coast guard officials said the heavy northwest gale would force her to tack back and forth and prevent her making any progress toward the capes.

The Friendship, which hails from Rockland, Me., was en route from Hampton Roads for New England ports with a cargo of lumber.

According to wireless messages picked up today at the Charleston Navy Yard radio vessels are standing by the Italian steamship Monsenisio, reported yesterday sinking off Cape May.

OBJECTS TO DEER ISLAND

Frasca Says Drugs Can Be Had There; Asks to Be Sent to State Farm

A sentence to the House of Correction does not mean that a drug addict is deprived of his supply of dope, according to a statement in the Roxbury Court today by a drug addict who was caught with twenty grains of morphine, two needles and a hypodermic syringe in his possession.

Pleading for a sentence to the State farm in order that he could have a real chance to be cured of the drug habit, Joseph Frasca, addict, a widower with one child, told Judge Hayden that there was always a way to obtain drugs at Deer Island.

Judge Hayden sentenced Frasca to one year at the House of Correction and told him that if he applied to be transferred to the State farm the authorities would undoubtedly comply with his request.

Frasca was caught after a chase along Washington street, Roxbury, when the cries of Miss Ida Epstein attracted the attention of Special Officer Mahoney of the Roxbury Crossing police station.

Frasca had previously entered the store of David Epstein at No. 2057 Washington street and asked to be shown some shirt waists. While Miss Epstein's back was turned he picked up nine shirt waists and stuffed them under his coat. The young woman saw the tags hanging out and Frasca ran for the street. She followed and caught up with him, at the same time calling for help.

Mahoney found the drugs on the prisoner. He was given the year's sentence on the drug charge and a charge of stealing the waists was placed on file.

11 HOMELESS, 2 RESCUE WOMAN SAVED IN SOUTH BOSTON FIRE AND 2 CHILDREN AT LYNN FIRE

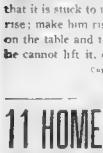
Alone in a room on the second floor of a blazing dwelling, two [illegible] South Boston [illegible] were rescued by their mother and a patrolman, who carried them to safety through smoke-filled halls and stairways.

The fire of unknown cause started in the cellar of No. 15 G street and spread to the roof of the dwelling and an adjoining house, No. 92 B street.

When the blaze was discovered the two Flaherty children, Ellen, six years old, and Evelyn, three years old, were alone on the second floor of the house, which is a two and one-half story wooden dwelling. The mother of the children, Mrs. Patrick Flaherty, was on the first floor.

Accompanied by Patrolman J. H. Ellwood of Athens Street Station, Mrs. Flaherty rushed up the stairs to the room where her children were playing, carrying them to safety.

Eleven members of the Flaherty household were made homeless by the blaze. The house occupied by Cornelius Sullivan at No. 92 B street was also badly damaged. The damage to both houses was estimated at $1,500.



Ellen Flaherty.

A sick woman and two children were rescued from a burning tenement house in Lynn by District Fire Chief Henry Brennan and his chauffeur.

They were the first arrivals at the blaze in the three-story house at No. 13 Neptune street.

Joseph Rosen, six years old, and his sister Sadie, eight years old, were borne to safety from a room on the second floor, where they were trapped. The doors of this room were locked and the hallway was blazing. They were carried to the street, where their mother was waiting in hysterical fear for their safety.

The rescuers returned to the house and brought out Mrs. Sarah Margolis, who was ill in bed. She is the mother of Louis Margolis, owner of the house. The fire was caused by a lighted candle which tipped over.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bokel, occupants of the first floor, escaped without difficulty.

FRUIT STEAMSHIP BURNS AT PIER

Hoboken, N. J., Feb. 16.—The 2,000 ton steamer Sagua of the Atlantic Fruit Line which was recently converted into an oil burner and new piers, was practically destroyed by fire today. The vessel burned over during the height of the blaze and her smokestacks rested on the top of the pier. The vessel was being overhauled preparatory to resuming her service between Cuban ports and Boston.

GLYNN DENIES CHARGE OF 'FIN COM'

Unqualified denial was made by Thomas P. Glynn, chairman of the schoolhouse commission, that he ever represented the Mayor as favoring the award of a contract to the Peregrine Heat and Power Company, as alleged by the Finance Commission.

Thomas P. Glynn

In a report to the legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs, the commission stated that Mayor Curley was represented to W. T. Keough of the school committee as "very much interested" in the power company securing a contract to install heating apparatus in the four schools. The commission alleges unusual pressure was brought to bear on Keough, who it is said, disregarded it.

150 FLEE FIRE IN NORTH END HOTEL

Fleeing in confusion, 150 guests escaped flames in the Webster House, No. 202 Hanover street, North End, early today.

They scurried through smoke filled corridors, crowding each other in terror in a mad rush to safety. When the blaze was extinguished most of the occupants returned to their rooms, after a period of exposure, while partly dressed.

The Webster House is the famous "Bay State House" of former days. In eighty-four years' existence the hotel was never visited by fire before.

Joseph Ross and Joseph Lesser, two lodgers, smelled smoke while in the washroom. They walked to the corridor of the second floor and discovered a great volume of smoke. Ross yelled "fire" and Lesser shouted an alarm in Italian. He notified the night clerk, who sounded the hotel fire gong. The frightened ran through corridors beating on room doors.

Confusion resulted. Then the startled occupants, some met by smoke [illegible] suffered. It was James Cacolla, who was overcome on the stairs when leaving room 8.

He was revived outside. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

The B. A. A. virtually clinched the Eastern amateur hockey championship when it took New Haven into camp, 3 to 2, [illegible]

It was a scientific demonstration of the game of all-star sport played before a capacity audience, and, except for the final few minutes of New Haven's desperate but futile endeavor to tie the score, it was as clean as a hound's tooth.

Real championship hockey was played throughout, and the score truly indicated the relative strength of the two sextets as they exhibited last night.

Brilliant team work and sensational individual play made up thrilling and delightful combination and the score fluctuated with New Haven first in the lead then tied; then in the lead again; then tied, and finally vanquished by a single [illegible]

This veteran player, who seems to improve like old wine, although now denied the opportunity to improve with that liquid, figured in all three [illegible] of the B. A. A. points, scoring one single-handed and passing to Geran for the other two. And Irv might have had still another marker to his credit but for the fact a New Haven player was injured and time out called, just as Irv got away another well-directed shot.

Both New Haven points and one of the Unicorn counters, came in the first period, while the tying and winning Church markers came in the second period. But although [illegible] in scores the final was [illegible] anything more [illegible] than his predecessors.

Scores came thick and fast in the first period of play. Less than two minutes had been ticked off when Armstrong of New Haven, cut the Unicorn defense to ribbons and swooped down [illegible] to cage a long shot before Lockman could get set to stop it.

Scarcely another minute had passed when Irv Small [illegible] brilliant passwork [illegible] the entire New Haven forward wing point. And a few moments later came the second New Haven goal when Lowrey, getting the disk at mid-rink, trooped through the Unicorn defense and scored on a short lift.

A few minutes later Kenyon repeated the preceding effort, appearing to forge [illegible] end time-defying [illegible] brought the score to [illegible] of the Unicorns, who it remained for the remainder of the evening.

GOLD SKATES RACES AT THE ARENA TOMORROW AFTERNOON

MORE THAN 100 ARE IN ICE DERBY FINALS

Tomorrow is the day of days for Greater Boston speed skaters, and for those interested in that thrilling Winter sport.

For, at 3 o'clock, in the Boston Arena, there will be conducted the semi-final and final contests in Greater Boston's First Annual Ice Skating Derby—the GOLD SKATES RACES.

Meeting in the prize-winning heats are more than 100 of the fastest skaters of all ages in this section. Each qualified for tomorrow's events through able performances in the GOLD SKATES TRIALS three weeks ago. The intervening days have been spent in preparing for the final mee, and the keenest and most thrilling speed skating competition seems assured.

Walter Thorn, former New England speed skating champion, and Miss Agnes Seamans, former winner of the New England women's title, are two of the star contestants who will perform, and there are many others of almost equal repute and ability included in the list.

The events include: 220-yard race for girls under 14 years of age; 220-yard dash for boys under 14; 220-yard dash for girls 14 to 16; 440 yard race for boys 14 to 16; 440 yard race for girls 16 to 18; 880 yard race for boys 16 to 18; 880 yard Greater Boston championship race for women and 880 yard Greater Boston championship race for men. The last event carries the sanction of the New England Skating Association, and the time made in that race, as well as in the others, will be officially listed as record performances for the district.

Sectional and Individual Rivalry Will Prevail

Sectional as well as individual rivalry will prevail in each of the races. Dorchester with more than thirty boy and girl skaters qualified for tomorrow's semi-final and final races, is better represented than any other section, but in Boston proper, there are able representatives from Roxbury, Allston, Brighton, Charlestown, Mattapan, South Boston, East Boston, Roxbindale, Jamaica Plain, Back Bay and the West and South Ends, while among the suburban towns and cities who will have representatives in the events are, Brookline, Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Malden, Chelsea, Revere, Quincy, Linden, Newton, Newton Lower Falls and Squantum.

The representatives of each section boast pride and enthusiastic following. Skating rooters throughout Greater Boston desire to see the skaters in their particular section come home bearing the GOLD SKATES emblematic of Greater Boston championships or, failing in that, to win the SILVER SKATES that will be presented to those who finish second in each of the eight classes. And hundreds of their number plan to journey to the Arena to lend vocal support to their favorites.

Admission Fee for Spectators Reduced

By special arrangement with George V. Brown, manager of the Arena, the admission fee for spectators has been reduced to twenty-five cents, and following the races the skaters will be permitted skating privileges on the Arena ice surface.

All those qualified for the competition must report to the Arena between 1:30 and 1:45 o'clock, for the round will be started promptly at 2 o'clock.

The first to be called will be semi-final heats for boys under fourteen years; then will follow semi-final heats for girls, fourteen to sixteen; semi-finals for boys fourteen to sixteen; final for girls under fourteen; final for boys under fourteen; final for girls, fourteen to sixteen; final for boys, fourteen to sixteen; semi-finals for girls, sixteen to eighteen; semi-finals for boys sixteen to eighteen; semi-finals for girls over eighteen; semi-finals for boys over eighteen; then the finals in the last four classes.

Prizes of Gold and Silver Skates and Boots

The prizes to be awarded—GOLD SKATES and SKATING BOOTS for the winners, and SILVER SKATES and SKATING BOOTS for those who finish second — were presented by the following companies:

Fourteen pairs skating boots, Gregory & Read Shoe Company; ten pairs GOLD and SILVER SKATES Winchester Repeating Arms Co.; ten pairs GOLD and SILVER SKATES Winchester Read store, two pairs of GOLD and SILVER SKATES and skating boots, A. G. Spalding Bros.; six pairs GOLD and SILVER SKATES Horace Partridge Company; one pair of SILVER SKATES and skating boots, Wright & Ditson.

Big Entry Already in for Hearst Cup Shooting Matches

Keen competition was assured by the entrance of De Witt Clinton High School from New York City in the contest. This school is the largest in the world, having more than 9,000 students enrolled.

A uniform fifty foot range has been adopted with Connelly targets. Twelve men will constitute a team, each man to fire five shots from standing position, prone, kneeling and sitting.

ARLINGTON SCHOOLS TO HOLD CARNIVAL

TECH IN A TRIANGULAR GYM MEET TONIGHT

With every sport scheduled for an engagement, the Technology athletes are in for a busy week-end. The most important meets are the triangular gym meet among Harvard, Pennsylvania and Tech, and the mile relay with Harvard in the K. C. games at Mechanics Building. The boxers, wrestlers, swimmers, fencers and basketball players will try to hold their own in meets.

The triangular meet, which opens the engineer gym season, is held tonight. The Cardinal and Gray gymnasts should encounter no difficulty with Harvard, which failed to win a meet last year. Penn has a strong team, but with George Anderson in the tumbles Jack McCoy on the parallels and rings and Capt. Bill Vicinus on the horse, the engineer team stands a good chance to taking the honors.

The Tech entries are as follows:

Horizontal bar—J. S. Long, T. Allen, J. Kurmazian, U. of P.; R. A. Wood, B. S. Wood, H. Rodakiewicz, Harvard, J. L. Lieck, M. H. King, Peabody, Tech.

Tumbles—J. H. Long, S. Nowak, U. of P.; A. V. Price, M. R. Pace, Penn; J. H. Weist, Harvard; H. J. McMillen, G. V. Anderson, B. H. Caldwell, Tech.

Parallels—T. Allen, H. B. McLeary, J. Kurmazian, U. of P.; H. A. Wood, B. S. Wood, J. R. Weist, Harvard; J. T. McCoy, M. L. Rue, Tech.

Rings—G. V. Coleson, U. of P.; A. W. Dole, H. A. Wood, Harvard; J. T. McCoy, H. G. Sise, Tech.

Horse—J. S. Long, T. Wilson, U. of P.; M. R. Parsonnet, H. A. Wood, Harvard; W. W. Vicinus, B. H. Fuller, R. O. Brink, L. M. Littlefield, Tech.

Tomorrow afternoon the Cambridge boxers will meet the Yale mittmen in Tech's new gymnasium. Yale has a strong team, but Coach Vap Boutelier feels confident that the engineers will give them a stiff race. Al Lindsey, in the 118 pound class, has not lost a bout this season, Lew Phillips, in the 126 pound class, is one of the cleverest boxers in the institute while Captain Ed Hale, Tech's 145 pound entry, has also played a part in almost every victory. Hale is a clever boxer and always a hard fighter. Hogan in the 158 pound class, is unable to fight, Mayl will fill two bouts on his record. He is anxious to mix with Carver one of the Elis, who defeated him last year.

The 125 pound boxer has not been picked. Norwood says it takes care of this berth, but he won't with the wrestlers to meet Lehigh. The wrestlers are badly crippled. Tech is sure of the 115 pound boy in Harry Bruner who has never lost a match. Captain Rock Hereford who was a member of Stranger Lewis' camp last Summer, is pretty sure to down his man.

Athletics—New records are looked for in the Cross Bridge Legion meet, seems to be the most likely contest for a champion, who honors in view of the fact that the Norfolk Club and Dorchester, but wakened, when they struck more real opposition in Cambridge and Melrose.

The Quincy club have some likely players on their roster but they are not always available.

Despite the fact, that inclement weather conditions have held up the schedule to some extent, the league officials feel that great progress has been made in outdoor hockey and even in view of the fact that several of the games have lighted rinks it is believed that all clubs will be able to finish the schedule before the spring thaw hits Boston.

WINCHESTER WINS FROM ARLINGTON

Winchester won a Suburban Interscholastic Girls Basketball League game from Arlington, 7 to 17.

Miss B. Pike, right forward for the winners, made 17 points for her team, and Miss E. Jansen, the captain and left forward, made 12. Miss F. Braithwaite, right forward, made all the 17 points for Arlington.

SIX VETERAN PITCHERS OUT FOR EAGLE NINE

The Eagle has hopped off on the first leg of its flight toward 1923 baseball honors. The B. A. A. building (for battery candidates was stormed by eleven pitchers and nine catchers.

Harry Mullowney

Six veterans, members of last season's nine reported, and in the five green candidates of ability appeared in the lists for a place on the staff. Boston College should have plenty of reserve material on hand for the long season which will begin on April 4.

Of the veterans Mullowney and Vargus are the only southpaws. McGehan, Lashway, Hickey and Patten are right handed hurlers. Mahoney, Patten and Kelley are most of experience and ability. These three are the nucleus of the pitching staff.

Vargus, Lashway and McGehan are veterans, but are used only occasionally. Each Vargus displayed very good form last Spring, and ought to prove a big asset to Coach Hearkison. McGehan, a former Cambridge Latin twirler and Lashway, cannot be overlooked, and with the team playing practically every other day from the first of April until the middle of June one of their ability will be needed.

Among the new candidates for the pitching staff is Ed Mullowney, brother of the captain, who starred high in interscholastic baseball. Ed is a right hand pitcher with plenty of speed and a deceptive delivery.

Ed Phillips is the only veteran catcher out for the position. There is no lack of good men among the new candidates. Ward, who played halfback on the Eagle eleven; Sullivan, Fall, and a former Cambridge Latin star and Lindbeck of Lexington probably will try for the post.

Judging from past performances of the fourteen candidates Boston College should be part collaborators this season.

The following battery candidates reported: Pitchers Capt. Mullowney, Kelley, Patten, Vargus, Lashway, McGehan, Hickey, Carroll, Clark, Sepka and Ed Mullowney. Catchers, Ed Phillips, Ward, Sullivan, Corcoran, Mulligan, Green, Hanson, O'Neil and Carey.

Todd led the fight throughout. After the first round a referee constantly intervened to break Lewis' clinches.

Todd's manager announced that he will take Todd to America to meet James Johnny Wilson, of Boston for the world's middleweight championship.

LUCE'S SHOTPUT FOULS BEAT HUNTINGTON

By FRED C. LANE

The surprise of the season in track circles was put over by the Harvard Freshmen when they defeated Huntington School at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, 35 to 33.

The failure of Bill Luce to win the shotput put the Red and Black out of the running. Luce, who is capable of hurling the iron 46 feet, fouled in all three trials and Harvard won all three places. Almond was the last with 41 feet 9 in. ses followed by Fahey and Palmer in the order named.

It was just like a soft victory for Huntington when Captain Sweeney and Sumner both of Huntington won first honors in the 40 yard dash and Sumner and Sweeney also won the hurdles, defeating Allen of Harvard and Parker of Huntington.

What looked like an intentional foul was committed in the 600-yard event when Dick McFarland of Huntington attempted to pass Allen of Harvard on the last lap. It looked as though Allen passed the Huntington flyer for he crossed in the lead with a thump and was put out.

Allen was declared a winner by the judges nevertheless. That gave Harvard an extra five points that it might not have had. Magoun and Ray saw their teammate downed and took second and third honors.

Remember the Time—

By Jack Casey

YER put on yer first new suit with long trousers. 'N yer Ma was takin' yer to a strawberry festival but while she was gettin' ready she said yer could wait outside but to be careful, an' not get dirty.

An' yer strutted out, with yer hands in yer pockets an' the gang was across the street arguin' about goin' fishin' an' when they saw you they all ran over an' pretended to admire yer wonderful suit. An' yer stood self-conscious hopin' they wouldn't be rough as yer Ma told yer not to sit down or soil yer hands. An' suddenly someone sneaked behind you an' stooped down on all fours an' somebody else pushed yer over backwards. An' down yer went an' they sat on yer an' throttled yer mouth.

An' then they rolled up yer pants, snapped yer new red garters, pulled down yer green an' white checkered socks, yanked out yer polka dot four-in-hand tie an' sat on yer "pork pie" hat.

An' then ran.

'N' up yer got cryin' with rage an' cut come yer Ma an' was horrified an' yer day was ruined.

A famous soap company gave away a wagon with little wooden wheels an' it had a picture of a big bumble bee on the side.

Yer Ma subscribed to the soap club an' got a writin' desk and hung silk curtains on the lower shelves to cover the books. An' there was a mirror at the top shelf an' the writin' part of the desk let down on brass chains. An' the day yer was writin' an' the chains busted an' yer spilled the ink on the carpet an' got licked.

Everybody read "Parted on Her Weddin' Morn" by Laura Jean Libby an' the biggest hero in the world to you an' the gang was Frank Merriwell an' yer couldn't wait for the Tip Top Weekly to come out fast enough. An' when yer read it yer'd swap it with one of the gang for a "Jesse James" or "The Liberty Boys."

An' how yer hated Chester Arlington who was always tryin' to get the best of Dick Merriwell, Frank's young brother but was always foiled in the last chapter.

REMEMBER?

I'LL SAY YER DO.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

CALIFORNIA people claim that the climate in the West is better than the climate in the East. Maybe San Francisco has a better weather man than New York.

CHICAGO ought to have nicer weather than Los Angeles because they pay their forecaster a larger salary.

THE Eastern prophets make more mistakes than the Western ones, but that's only natural. In California they give their weather men two guesses.

IN New York if he predicts rain he doesn't get a chance to change his mind until the next day.

IF he forecasts a pleasant day and it happens to snow, he doesn't care, he sticks to his prediction.

A WEATHER man isn't the kind of a fellow to say one thing in the morning and another thing in the afternoon.

THEY have to predict the climate for tomorrow. They'd never make a mistake if they only had to tell us what yesterday's weather is going to be.

GEORGE WASHINGTON was the most truthful man in the world but he never worked for the weather bureau.

A FORECASTER'S job can make a liar out of a man quicker than the income tax.

WHEN the weather man makes a prediction he has to stand back of it. The government ought to employ women for this job and then they'd have more right to change their minds.

A WEATHERWOMAN wouldn't only change her mind about the climate but she'd give you an argument besides.

NOT only that, but she'd have her mother to back her up in whatever she said.

CALIFORNIA may have better climate than the East. They have the same clouds in San Francisco, but they don't leak as often as the ones in New York.

A FORECASTER also has to keep track of the moon, check up on the stars, watch the sun and regulate the tide.

RUNNING the sky and the ocean is too big a job for one man.

IF the sun is late in rising in the morning, it's up to the weather man to make excuses for it.

HE'S like Atlas, he's got the whole world on his shoulders.

EVERY city ought to have two weather forecasters and give each a guess and make it against the law for both of them to predict the same kind of climate.

THEN if each of them gave their reports to different publications we'd be satisfied. If you didn't like the weather that one daily ran you could get your climate out of another paper.

HOLD FAST TO THE JOY WITHIN REACH

There is a certain crowd of people with whom you would like to associate, but you have neither the means nor the time to do so—and you are unhappy.

You do not allow yourself to get enjoyment out of what you can do.

Did you ever stop to think that many of those in the crowd you so long to associate with wish that they might have the opportunity to be companioned with persons in another set above them?

Comparatively few persons reach the height of their ambition, achieve the utmost of their desire to mingle with certain other classes of people.

Do you think all of these persons are foolish enough not to enjoy what they are able to have?

Learn to get happiness out of what you have. Don't be so set on having what you cannot procure that you miss what joy you might have with what you do possess.

PURSUED

By La Monte Waldron

THROUGH Summer days she followed me
From inland lake to pulsing sea,
Using shadow to whisk my eyes
Toward purple or azure skies
Sometimes in black of silken sheen,
Sometimes in blue, or pink, or green.

She stood in daring silhouette,
And ever shunned the ocean wet.

When Winter came I heaved a sigh,
I hoped at last she'd said good-bye;
Alas! I find her on the stage
And often on the printed page,
Still posing till my senses whirl—
She is—the one-piece bathing girl

THE WILD PROMISE

Made by an Athlete to a Cripple, and, Though a Lie, It Proves to Be the Guiding Star of the Young Man's Life

By William Hugo Pabke

GOOD-BY, mother, dear! Don't forget to feed Jimsy. Yes, I'll promise to take my tonic every morning. Oh, I'll have a good time, all right. Good-by, good-by!"

So happy, so tender in its inflections was the voice that came ringing through the Pullman from the vestibule that the occupants of the car unconsciously raised their eyes to view the owner.

He came limping in, leaning heavily on the arm of the porter. His progress down the aisle was so slow that his fellow-travelers had ample opportunity to observe him.

The delicate, ascetic face, with its high forehead and sensitive mouth, held their attention so completely that they were impressed with a feeling of intimacy with the young man long before they became conscious of his twisted, crippled leg.

As he neared his chair he encountered an older man who had entered from the opposite end. With a glad smile of recognition, the cripple held out his hand.

"Mr. Grayson!" he cried. "You don't remember me?"

The older man grasped the proffered hand, and looked down at the other

"I must plead guilty," he said genially; "but pray don't be offended; my memory is none too good."

"I'm not a bit offended," said the lad, with his winning smile. "My name is Herbert Jennings, although that doesn't mean anything to you."

Grayson looked at the boy with interest.

"It was on the same train, eight, nine—no, ten years ago," explained Herbert, leaning eagerly toward his companion.

"Don't you remember the little lame chap who got on the train here that day?" asked Herbert wistfully, "with his leg in an iron brace?"

"As he walked through the car the train started, and he fell sprawling right beside the biggest, strongest man he had ever seen.

"The big fellow leaned over and caught the boy up in his arms. The boy began to cry because he was ashamed. He felt, in his weakness, the wonderful, wonderful strength of the athlete. Then the big chap began to talk to the boy. Do you remember now?" ended Herbert breathlessly.

"Yes, I remember now, vaguely," said the other softly.

"And do you remember what you told the boy? Do you remember your promise?" asked Herbert, leaning forward.

Suddenly, a flash of memory brought the whole scene before Grayson's mental vision. He remembered each word, each movement, with painful clearness.

"I lied to you," he said in a whisper. "I lied to you!"

"You said," persisted Herbert, not heeding the interruption, 'don't feel so badly, old chap. I know what's worrying you; you're not hurt. It's that iron thing on your leg. I had to wear one myself when I was your age, but I got over it. I'm a pretty husky brute now, and I promise that you'll be just like me in a few years.'"

"The cruelty of it!" cried Grayson, clenching his hands. "I didn't mean to be—I didn't mean to be cruel."

"You weren't," said Herbert, positively. "I was hurt more in the spirit than in the flesh. Your promise sustained me through the long, sensitive years of boyhood. When I finally found out that it was a lie—no, I won't call it that —when I found out that the promise was merely the creation of a strong man's compassion, I had developed beyond the need of it."

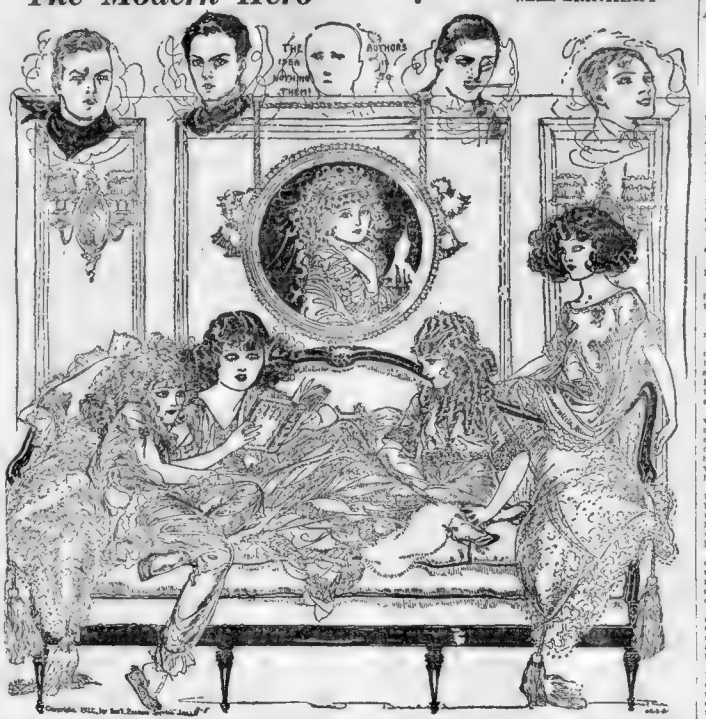
"I am trying to understand," said the other, "but it's hard. What could take the place of the strength you had hoped for?"

"My brain" cried the boy quickly. "It's all the more acute for the very reason that it is not subservient to a strong body. I shall become a greater poet on account of my weakness. I am content!"

"You mean it?" cried Grayson eagerly

"I wouldn't change places with anyone in the world today. I am on my way to meet my publishers—it's my first volume," said Herbert, with a flush of boyish pride.

The Modern Hero -:- DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY



Copyright, 1923, by Int'l Feature Service, Inc.

THE author of the blue and gold-backed book that the girl, with the wrapt face, and the long, bobbed hair deeply and perfectly waved, holds in her white hands and reads to an also wrapt and also bobbed crew of femininity, had in mind exactly what his hero looked like . . . but his idea, in spite of extravagant description, is not the idea of any one of the girls who hear his romantic little tale.

Nowadays he's rather a cowboy; or a sleek-haired "cake-eater" and flattery bound; or the artist-type with blond hair parted square-y in the middle of his square head; the dark and handsome "movie man", the funny chap with no beauty, but with a gift of tongue and good temper; the school boy with vaselined hair and the neck-tie mind; the business chap with a square chin and a bright, small eye; the actor with a womanly beauty of expression on a very manly face; the homely country chap struggling up out of field-soil into the drawing room with velvet underfoot and gilt round about.

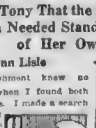
All these and more—any one of these young American men—homely, handsome, wise, foolish, clever, slow, awkward, distingue, lovable, unworthy—the ONE hero who is going through his paces in the book may be, for the several sorts of listening romancing girls. And each one sees herself the heroine. —NELL BRINKLEY.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Anne Told Tony That the Day Had Come When Carlotta Needed Standing by on Account of Her Own Desertion

By Ann Lisle

MY astonishment knew no bounds when I found both the trunks gone. I made a search upstairs and down and then in the hall. There I found one of my trunks — the other was to where in sight As I started forward hesitatingly the door opened and Tony came. To my smiling, debonair, an amazing Tony, indeed.



"Why—what—how did you get here?" I stammered.

"Carlotta," he replied quietly, his eyes ice-blue and remote as they searched my face.

"She telephoned you?" I asked.

"she came to my office and told me," he said curtly.

"I don't understand," I stammered, groping for the right note to take. I was not sure of Tony's attitude in the matter, nor could I figure out precisely what Carlotta's idea had been in going to him, and the tone she had taken.

"You don't need to understand," was Tony's crisp yet good-humored reply. "I'm sure that I understand you, Anne. I think you've done the right thing—but a rather spartan right thing. It will be wonderful, however, for Betty to have you. She won't"——

He hesitated and I waited breathlessly for Tony to conclude by saying "she won't—need me then." If he said that, I would know that my sacrifice was not in vain and that Carlotta was on the highroad to happiness.

"She won't"——" said Tony, concluding to my astonishment on the note I've heard sounded so often recently—"ever forget. Betty will stand by you, Joe, if the day ever comes when you need her"

"The day has come now," I said, struggling for composure, "when Caribita needs standing by She'll miss me and be hurt by my desertion. I'm sure of that Betty has me now, Carlotta is alone."

It was cold and I knew it But I didn't know how crude until I saw Tony's ice-blue eyes fixed on me with a long level look that had a tinge of humor in the question they seemed to call

"You needn't worry about—Carlotta," said Tony finally.

It may have meant everything—or nothing

Tony whisked me over to Betty's apartment. Leaving Lyons to see to the transportation of luggage, he escorted me up to my new home with an air of formality that puzzled me. I couldn't figure out Tony's precise reaction toward my move, nor yet how he felt it likely to affect his status in regard to Betty and Carlotta . So I gave up puzzling over it with a half humorous remembrance of a quotation that Jim used to fling at me when he found me in what he called my Mrs. Fix-it mood:

"This knot is too hard for me to untie. Thou most unravel it. Time, and not I."

Betty herself opened the door to her apartment. She was a flushed and almost normal looking Betty, with a ruffled white apron tied about her waist and relieving the somberness of her black dress.

"Welcome!" she cried, reaching out and gathering me into her arms with a fervor that showed Betty at least was clear in her mind as to the rightness of my coming to live with her.

I felt Betty's lips against my cheek and then her head went down against mine. When she lifted it her eyes were starry.

"I have a true friend," she said, simply and proudly. There was a momentary flash of something in her manner that made me feel as if I'd encountered the old Betty of gayer and happier days.

"Tony, will you go out and beat the children up? I take Anne to her room? I like the idea of—the formal touch."

"To the children!" asked Tony, stripping off his overcoat and starting kitchenward in the midst of our relieved laughter.

When Betty and I arrived at the room she had assigned me, I found it a bower of great, fragrant red roses. No one ever gave me red roses before, and yet their warm sweetness seemed suddenly the one thing I needed to make this strange new room livable.

"Aren't they—right?" asked Betty. "I thought your face would light up when you saw them. Here's an envelope that came with them."

YOUR BEAUTY

NEW SERIES OF AUTHORITATIVE ARTICLES

By Maria Jeritza,

Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Co., and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

WE hear and read much these days, of the necessity to health and beauty of plenty of vigorous outdoor exercise. And it is true, outdoor physical activity of the right kind is a great beautifier.

But there is another element that enters just as largely into beauty. That essential is rest. Without it, perfect mental and physical fitness is impossible, for rest meets a deep human need.

One of the greatest of your American physicians, who made a specialty of the nervous diseases of women, once said that there are times when the very best prescription for a woman is to send her to bed with a good novel, and with instructions to read for a while until she naturally gets drowsy and drifts to sleep, then to stay in bed twenty four hours.

Of course, we can't all of us do that, for some of us are very busy persons, indeed. But one thing we can manage, if we will. When every nerve calls out for rest, we can resolutely withstand even the most tempting invitation to theatre, dance or party, retire at 8 o'clock or before, and stay in bed until the following day.

Try this recipe the next time you feel that every nerve is taut. You will imagine all sorts of things that you positively should attend to. But let them wait. Friends may drop in to call. Firmly stick to your good resolution to rest. You are simply "not at home," conventionally speaking

Next morning, complete your beauty treatment by foregoing even your morning exercise. Add to the office instead of walking.

This beauty measure if you adopt it into your regime a couple of evenings and mornings each month, will bring you rich returns You will get rested "through and through," and resume your usual activities, as delightful Sam Weller would express it, full of renewed "wim, wigor and witality."

Ordinarily, I do not advocate reading in bed, but on such an occasion, as a possible rest to taut nerves, I would suggest that you throw over your shoulders your comfiest shawl, protecting your arms, neck and shoulders, make sure the light is good, prop yourself comfortably with pillows and indulge in the luxury of an hour with your favorite fashion magazine if it is "just out," a new book of poems or a story that is interesting, but not too exciting

Oh, it's fun just once in a while to read oneself sleepy this way, then switch off the lights and sleep until one is thoroughly rested! But, of course, such a procedure, if indulged in too often, would cease to be either enjoyable or beneficial.

Strange though it may seem to some persons who possess what may be called an "ingrown" conscience, pleasant things are often good for one. Or, to state the fact more accurately, all worth while things in life are thrillingly interesting and enjoyable

Work and play, exercise and rest—study and recreation—when undertaken in a clean-minded, clear headed, wholesome way, all are equally delightful

Maria Jeritza.

SEAS ON THE MOON

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Eminent Astronomer and Authority on Subjects of Scientific Interest.

A MAN in Woburn, Mass., who likes to watch the moon, and discuss the universe," and who, apparently, does not like to give up the idea which Galileo entertained together with many other astronomers of former centuries, that the moon is just like another earth, only smaller, suggests that the reason why we see no water on those level parts of the moon which are still called maria, or "seas," is because of their great distance from us.

He thinks that just as we can see the bottom of harbors, lakes and rivers, by looking down from a great height, so the oceans of the moon, although a mile or more deep, may be transparent to our eyes 240,000 miles away.

Many persons entertain a similar idea, but it is erroneous. In fact, the light undergoes a double absorption, once in descending and again in returning after reflection from the bottom, and enough light must thence back to make the reflecting object visible from above the surface of the water.

It is plain that increase of distance of the observer above the water cannot increase the amount of light reflected from the bottom, but it may render the faintly illuminated objects on the bottom easier to be seen for two reasons First, because at the increased distance the confusing reflection from ripples and wavelets on the surface is relatively diminished. a , second, because the outlines of objects of considerable size, such as large rocks and sandy shoals, can be better grasped from a greater distance, where the light reflected from their whole surface is collected in a single view

But the depth at which such objects can be distinguished from balloons and airships is not very great. The photographic camera reveals them rather better than the eye, and the greatest depth at which such photographs have been taken is only between fifty and sixty feet. Of course, in specially clear waters and where a beam of sunlight directly touches a bright submerged object, visibility may extend to somewhat greater depths

At the bottom of lunar oceans just as is the case at the bottom of the terrestrial ones, there would be complete absence of sunlight. The absorption of light by the upper layers of water would make the oceans dark in hue, and they might have a generally bluish tinge. But their presence would be best revealed by gleams and flashes from areas of total reflection, such as appear on the surfaces of our seas when viewed at certain angles

Moreover, if there were enough water on the moon to form oceans, it would evaporate and give birth to clouds, just as it does on the earth, and then the moon would have, as now, always appear to us with every detail of its surface, large enough to be seen at all, equally visible, except as affected by changes in the direction or intensity of the sunlight.

If the so-called seas of the moon were full of water we would see it not only floating in the form of clouds, but disintegrating the mountain peaks, throwing down their cliffs and rounding off their sharp pinnacles and gables.

The Puget Sound region has for the first time in twenty-five years been invaded by the great snowy owl of the Arctic. This owl lives on small mammals that have been driven south by excessively severe weather, and it may have followed them into the United States in search of food; the blood stained feathers and fur of its prey may be seen in every part of the region. Those giant owls, sometimes six feet across the spread of the wings, have been known to attack a man.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Silence is an answer to a wise man."

The wise man does not always need to be told; he senses the answer, as Euripides (480-406 B. C.), the Greek dramatist, has remarked.

"War even to the knife."

This was the reply of Palafo, Governor of Saragossa, when called upon by the French to surrender during the siege of the city in 1808.

"A liar should have a good memory."

Quintilian (35-95 A. D.), the Roman rhetorician, in his "Institutions of Oratory," made this observation, the truth of which everyone has at times remarked

"Said in sport, meant in earnest."

Is a German proverb that corresponds to that other saying about "half jest, wholly in earnest."

"I have sent for you to see how a Christian Die."

said Joseph Addison (1672-1719) the brilliant English writer, to Lord Warwick, his stepson.

The Terrorist leader demands of Prince Michael the hiding place of his riches

A Russian Prince of Fabulous Wealth and Some Friends Bind Themselves to Bar All Women From Lives

THE STORY TO DATE

Prince Michael Fedor, a Russian of fabulous wealth, is at Monte Carlo while the great war is on. With him is his friend, Attilo Castro, and other acquaintances. The prince, on returning to Villa Sirena, finds everything changed owing to the war. He announces, to the amazement of his hearers, that he is ruined. Castro unfeelingly remarks that he would be content with one-tenth of the remains. The Prince proposes that Castro and a few of their friends live together with the proviso that no women shall enter their lives. They will be known as "The Enemies of Women." Castro tells the Prince he has seen the Duchess de Dellile. The Prince says he will not receive her. The story reverts to the marriage of the Prince's father and mother and the son's early training. His father dies and his mother marries again. Her new sister-in-law has a small daughter, Alicia. They come to Paris to live. Alicia flirts with Michael, who returns to Russia and takes up military training, but is exiled on account of his wild actions. He returns to Paris and meets Alicia.

By Vicente Blasco Ibanez,
Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and Other Novels of World Renown.

WHEN communications were re-established in an intermittent fashion between Western Europe and Russia—which was practically isolated—the administrator of the Prince gave a look of despair. The collections had been reduced 80 per cent

"According to that, I am going to be poor!" asked Lubimoff, laughing. The news seemed so unbelievable and absurd.

It was very difficult to send money as far as Paris. Besides, the rouble was decreasing in value at a dizzy rate. The Russian millions on reaching France were mere hundred thousands. Mobilization had left the mines without workmen; there was no outlet for the produce; the peasants, seeing their sons in the army, refused to pay any money, and even to work. The Russian government limited the sending of money to citizens abroad to small amounts so that gold might be kept within the country.

A New Regime

"The Czar putting me on a pension!" said the Prince in amazement. "A thousand or two thousand francs a month! How absurd."

He no longer laughed. His anger against the Russian court, which had gradually been growing in his subconsciousness ever since his expulsion so long ago from Petersburg, now suddenly flared up, moved by a selfish impulse. The Czar and his counselors, desirous of Russianizing all eastern Europe, were responsible for the war. They certainly might have kept peace with Germany. Why disturb the peace of the world for the sake of a little race of people in the Balkans?

He coolly made fun of certain of his friends who, by devious routes across Europe and the icy northern seas, returned to Russia to regain their former commissions in the army. As for him, he had no desire to die for the Czar.

It made little difference to him that his country might be governed by Germans. There were times when he even thought that would be preferable, so long as peace was restored rapidly, allowing him to scrap in behalf once more of his wealth and resume the life he had led a few months before—a century before, it seemed to him.

Dragged with the Whirlwind.

For Lubimoff the next two years went by like a nightmare. What sort of world was he living in? His former friends were leaving. Some of the frivolous women who had made his life pleasant for him were not moved in the least by the unfortunate events which were happening to the Prince, but others showed themselves to be heroic and self-sacrificing, forgetting all the past and feeling a new soul aroused within them.

The Prince suddenly found himself dragged along by the world happenings. A mysterious and irresistible force was pushing against him, causing him to lose his balance, just as he was reaching the pinnacle of his life, so pleasant, so vast, crowned with a halo of glory. And now, once started, he was stumbling heels over head, of his own inertia, and each step he struck as he descended gave him a harder blow, a more painful surprise. How far would this landslide take him? . . . What would he strike at the end of this unheard-of fall?

The fall of Czarism gave a ray of hope, to this magnate who hated the imperial government. "With the Republic the war will be over sooner and we shall come back to the proper order of things." His egoism made him conceive a Republic occupied chiefly with restoring the wealth of beings of fortunate birth. But suddenly even the meagre shreds of his fortune, which now and then still got as far as Paris, were suddenly cut off. The fountain of wealth was dry. The crumbling of a whole world had dammed its source forever.

"Your Excellency must sell," the administrator was always saying. "You must do without everything that is superfluous. We must liquidate in time. Who knows how long the present state of affairs may last!"

The yacht was lying idle in Monaco harbor. Almost the entire crew, composed of Italians, Frenchmen and Englishmen, had left it to go and serve in the navies of their respective nations. Only a few Spaniards remained on board to keep the boat clean.

The Gaviota II was renamed by the English Admiralty, and turned over to the Red Cross. When he signed the bill of sale, Michael Fedor felt that he was giving up his whole past. The romantic prestige of his mode of life had vanished now for all time; the Arabian Nights palace was being converted into a hospital. . . . What a world!

Serenely Accepted

In the end Michael Fedor grew accustomed to his misfortune, accepting it seriously. His desires had changed. He was tired of love adventures, which had been the only end of his existence. His constitution, continually renewed and vigorous, which had always amazed his friend Castro, suddenly broke down—more the result of financial worry than of any physical wear and tear.

He felt that he was poor, and he was accustomed to paying royally for his love affairs. Not being able to reward women with luxury, he would rather flee from them, in order not to accept from them and endure their whims. He preferred to master his desires as long as he could not satisfy them with all the grandeur of an Oriental potentate. Besides, he was tired of love, and all the pleasant things of life. a man can find in this world!

It was then that he thought of his friend Attilo Castro, of the Colonel, of Villa Sirena, white and shining in the Mediterranean sunlight, among the olive trees and [illegible]

"The earth is swept by the deluge. Perhaps the old lands will ones more appear; perhaps they will remain submerged forever, . . . Let us take refuge in our Ark, and wait and hope."

A Beautiful Place.

So Prince Michael gathered about him at Villa Sirena a little group of friends—Castro Novos, the oceanographer, Spadoni, the musician from the famous orchestra of the Gaviota II.—to enliven the period of waiting for the flood of war to subside. And in harmony with the Prince's new mood, the four had agreed to call their establishment "The Enemies of Women."

The magnificent gardens of Villa Sirena extended in terraces, some on a level with the roof of the villa, others descending like a mighty stairway, to the water's edge, where the deep blue Mediterranean, its slow swell combed by a sharp reef, broke the streaming water into clouds of spray.'

For here the Maritime Alps form a giant wall, parallel to the sea. In some places they descend steeply toward the Mediterranean, with the dizzy slope of a bulwark, without the slightest break to mask the fall. At other points the descent is gentler, creating waves of stone, miniature mountains which stand out above the waters, forming capes and smooth inlets. Close to the rocky shore line of the Riviera Gulf lay Monte Carlo, whose huge buildings, stretching from the water's edge half way up the mountains, were in full view of the windows of Villa Sirena.

"And such poverty as there was here less than a century ago," the colonel continued. "And today on the Riviera there are millionaires from the region, who have grown rich by merely selling the wretched fields of their fathers."

WHY DISHEARTENED?

APPEAL TO THE WORKING GIRL

By W. A. McKeever.
Widely Known Lecturer and Author and a National Authority on Juvenile Problems

FRANKLY, my girl, why are you a pessimist? You write me at length or explain to me in person as to how weak you are in one quality, how much you lack in another, and how unpopular you are in the society of young folks.

The fault is chiefly in your pessimism. You have turned your mind back instead of forward. You have turned your thoughts in instead of out. Thus you have soured your own disposition.

Along with your "blues" go low vitality and "that tired feeling," and poor work, no matter what your employment.

Let's try being alive. Take up the "Joy Cure." Start out on a self-training course in optimism, about as follows:

Begin the day with a sprinkle of warm water plus a dash of cold water plus a thorough skin massage.

Take a light breakfast of cereal and a warm drink. Avoid heavy foods.

Start off to your work with a quick step and an air of business and lightness.

Practice the attitude of being deeply interested in your employment.

Aim to turn out a little better work than formerly and more of it. Drudgery kills. Rapid, joyous work gives life.

Notice your tone of voice. Pessimism has probably made that weak and dull. Snap out your sentences clear and precise and learn to be positive. Look out for a chance to do some little kindly act—help an elderly woman to cross a dangerous place, pay some attention to a shy little girl who comes your way, stop to love and caress a sweet baby for a moment, show some unusual thoughtfulness of your employer's business.

Probably your love affairs are badly out of gear, as such is often at the bottom of a girl's pessimism and sourness. In the usual case it is an affair of love foolishly misdirected and it can be easily withdrawn.

Practice makes perfect. The simple steps given above—unless you are actually suffering from organic trouble—will gradually transform you from a pessimist to an optimist. You will begin to feel light-hearted. Your face will be more radiant, your voice will want to sing and your soul will want to shout for joy.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

Mary Blake Says:

Today Lucky if You Are AGGRESSIVE

EXCELLENT vibrations exist today until 5:53 p. m. Good for aggressive business enterprise, dealings with professional persons, contractors, artists and psychics.

Be careful in correspondence and agreements all day long, but especially after sundown. Your signature to a document today will prove most beneficial to you and your business associates.

Indulge yourself in social pleasures—you may meet the Lady of Your Dreams. Should her birthday be in February, she will be warmhearted, essentially refined, and will be of great assistance to you at times when things look darkest. She will be a real help mate and make an ideal mother.

If this is you birthday, you must try to curb your inclination to procrastinate. Do not put off until tomorrow what you can undoubtedly do today. You are apt to resort to deceit and trickery in business matters. Although you may seem to prosper at the start you will come to a sudden and disastrous end—and may find yourself in the claws of a very ugly controversy and maybe in the hands of the law.

Honesty is the best policy—you are advised to stop—look—and listen.

Harry Thaw and Nell Gwyn were born under the same sign as you were.

A child born today will have a nature susceptible to both good and evil influence. The parents should be most careful aware of its companions. These children will be great favorites with the opposite sex.

DORIS DISCOVERS A QUEER LITTLE TRAY

ONE day as Doris wandered through the woods she discovered a queer little thing, up in the maple tree.

"Oh, dear, I wish—" she began, when out from the branches popped a funny little head, and Squeedee, the tiny elfin from Joyland, hopped down beside her. "Goodness me!" Doris laughed. "I was just going to wish for you, and here you are."

"Right you are," laughed the merry elfin, "and now that I am here, what can I do for you?"

"Tell me how that funny little tea-tray came to be up in that tree," asked Doris. "It looks just as if the fairies had a party and went away without taking their tray of fairy glasses." And she pointed to the queer-looking thing up in the maple tree. "What is it, anyway, Squeedee?"

"What Is It, Anyway?"

Squeedee smiled, and touching Doris with his magic wand to make her as small as himself, he carried her up to the branch beside the queer little tray.

"Well, it surely looks more like a tea-tray than it did before," said Doris. "But the tiny cups are full."

"I should hope they are," squeaked a happy voice, and Mrs. Pollste Wasp, who seemed in charge of the tray, flew down beside Squeedee and Doris. "I should hope they're full. So you thought this a fairy tea-tray, did you?" she laughed.

"Well, yes, I did think so," replied Doris. "Can it be a nest?"

"You're talking," laughed Mrs. Pollste Wasp. "That's my nest, and I expect my babies out every day. You see, pollste wasps don't make the same kind of nests that other wasps do. We use single combs with the cells standing straight up. You see, there's only one layer of cells, too. That's enough to take care of at once. We make the paper that we use ourselves, from wood."

"And would you believe," laughed Squeedee, "that the little grubs when they first hatch out hang head downward?"

"I should think they would fall out," said Doris.

"They can't," replied Mrs. Pollste Wasp. "We have them glued in. My nurses take care of that. Oh, yes, indeed, we have nurses." She saw the funny look that crossed Doris' face. "Yes, they are glued in until they grow fat enough to fill the cell so they can't fall out, and the nurses feed them all the time."

"And there is another fairy thing about this fairy tea-tray," Squeedee added. "When the baby wasp is ready to leave the cell the workers clean the cell nicely and Mrs. Pollste Wasp uses it again. In that way she can use it several times during the season, as it only takes about a month for an egg to hatch."

Just then Doris heard her mother calling her. Bidding her friends and Squeedee goodby she hurried home to tell her mama of her visit to Mrs. Pollste Wasp's home.

The fun at Mr. and Mrs. Pat Murphy's party was fast and furious. It was some time before Mrs. Pat's old friend, Mrs. MacGuire, could get to have a quiet word with her.

"Tell me, Margaret," said Mrs. MacGuire, when at last she was able to get near her, "how do you and your husband get along together?"

"Very nicely indade," replied Mrs. Murphy. "Here, Mrs. MacGuire, we've been married goin' on seven months, and I haven't had to call the police in but twice."

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Well, I spent an entire afternoon discussing with Mr. Durant his Napoleonic activities in the automobile world and in selling stocks to the multitude, about which I have lately written a good deal.

I found Mr. Durant more eager to convert me to his stock distributing plan than to discuss his production activities. I do not mean that there was anything about his motor making operations which he was not willing to talk about or to furnish the figures about. What I want to convey is that I found him obsessed by the vision of what he is accomplishing and aspires to accomplish in coming years through the Durant plan of distributing stocks on the instalment plan with a proviso that the buyers cannot sell until one year or two years after they have finished making payments.

"I believe it would be still better for those who become interested in the Durant plan if they could not sell out for five years," declared Mr. Durant with tremendous earnestness. "What I am after is to induce people to save money who have never saved money before, and to get them to do this without any idea of making a quick clean up, an over night stock market 'turn.'"

I learned from Mr. Durant that one day this week no fewer than 14,000 new stockholders were enrolled under his monthly payment plan.

* * *

I learned, also, that there are now $50,000 Durant stockholders. This is a larger total than any other corporation, either industrial or railroad, has ever recorded in the history of American business.

I learned, too, that Durant has upwards of 9,000 representatives selling the Durant plan in various parts of the country. Mr. Durant is absolutely confident that before very long there will be under the Durant plan 500,000 stockholders.

It did not need this long, intimate session face-to-face with Mr. Durant to convince me that he is not money-mad, that he is not selfishly mercenary. I have always regarded him as honest, always realized that he possessed extraordinary ability as a producer and a distributor of motor vehicles.

But I have never been able to shake off the feeling that he was over ambitious, that he did not know there were any limits whatsoever to what one mortal could hope to accomplish. I always feared that this untamed ambition, inspired though it was by an honorable and unselfish motive, would land him in trouble.

* * *

I am not going to tell you today just what impression Mr. Durant's four-hour talk made upon me.

My final analysis of Durant's latest mammoth enterprises and undertakings will be influenced by figure and facts I have not yet in my possession.

The final upshot of our session was this:

Mr. Durant most readily agreed to answer any question I cared to put to him about any phase of his operations.

I am going to write out rather a lengthy list of questions which I know his followers, his critics, and the general public alike will be interested in having answered.

Let me add, however, that as Mr. Durant is leaving this week for the South and will visit his Far Western plants before returning to New York, it will probably be some time before it will be possible to publish my questions and his replies.

* * *

They promise to be worth waiting for.

ATLAS POWDER HAS HIGHER EARNINGS

Atlas Powder Company's annual report for 1922 shows sales of $16,723,735 against $14,495,018 year before. This represents a return of $15.93 per share on common stock outstanding at end of the year after payment of the usual 6 per cent. dividend on the company's preferred shares. This compares with $1.71 on company's common shares in previous years. The company's earnings on its total investment shows a return of 7.1 per cent.

INDIANA STANDARD MAY SECURE GULF

Indiana Standard Oil may secure Gulf Oil eventually, but vehemently rumors regarding acquisition of Gulf by Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, on basis of four shares of Gulf for three of Indiana, are denied in Standard Oil quarters, where it is pointed out Standard Oil, when it acquires properties does so only on favorable terms.

Whether Standard Oil of Indiana or any other Standard Oil Co. eventually will acquire Gulf Oil or not is a question, two important factors in which are price and the attitude of the government regarding such a merger. Current rumors of an exchange of Indiana stock for Gulf are characterized as extravagant.

Extra Dividend

Pennock Oil Company has declared an extra dividend of 10 cents a share and regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on its $10 par stock, payable March 31 to stock of record March 14.

SUGAR GROUP IS IRREGULAR AND QUIET

Oils, steels and motors were most active groups on the New York Stock Exchange today. Money renewed at 5% per cent. Sugar issues were inactive.

Resumption of the demand for copper, oil and independent steel shares imparted a firm tone to opening prices. Gulf States Steel opened 1¼ higher and Cerro De Pasco Copper up 1, led the early advance in that group. U. S. Industrial Alcohol established a new high record on a gain of ¾. California Petroleum rose 1 point to 56, also a new high record.

Cuba Cane preferred rose a point and American Beet Sugar ¾.

Early gains were extended as trading progressed. The Pan-American issues assumed leadership of the oil group, the A rising 2 points and the B 1¼. Phillips Petroleum duplicated its previous high on a gain of 1 point. Houston and Pacific Oils also advanced a point. Kennecott Copper crossed 41 to a new top for the year, and moderate gains were recorded by Utah, Inspiration and Chile. Federal Mining & Smelting preferred yielded a point on profit-taking, and Columbia Gas dropped 1¾.

American Can also receded, slightly on realizing sales. Rails continued to trail behind the industrials but moderate gains were recorded by St. Paul preferred, Canadian Pacific and Atlantic Coast Line. North American and Public Service of New Jersey, each up 1, were strong spots of the public utility group.

Foreign exchanges were steady, demand sterling establishing a new top for the year at $4.69, which duplicates the December high, which in turn was the highest rate recorded in two years.

But these funds do more than secure the policies; they are daily in use for the public welfare.

The Liberty Bonds held are the living evidence of the support which the policyholders gave to our Country in financing our war.

Mortgages on farms and on other real estate, bonds of States, Cities, Counties, and Townships, of Public Service Corporations, of Railroads, assist in the production and transportation of food and other commodities, and in other activities of our nation's life.

Since organization in 1862 the payments to policyholders aggregate $292,858,962

In every essential element—new business written, income, assets, surplus—there was a strong and consistent gain in 1922.

When a poet wrote:

"We are the makers and shakers of the world, forever, it seems," he reckoned without poison gas, organized finance and other modern improvements.

For centuries Homer really influenced thought and action. But today poets, sitting by breakings or "by desolate streams," have about as much influence as the famous fly in the fable of "The Coach and the Fly." The fly buzzed, but the horses pulled the coach.

Poetry was once a power, now it's only a memory and a poor medium for expressing thought. It was necessary once, when men did not print or read books, as an aid to memory. Poems were handed down through generations by memory. The rhyme and meter made it easy to remember.

The printing press, gunpowder, science, business methods have been hard on the poets and they died out, because their day had gone by.

"Say what you have to say, as briefly as possible," is the motto now, and prose is the language of the age. That may change, it probably will, and Homer may come back in a hundred thousand years or so. Then we shall have solved our material problem and poetry again will have a chance.

How Much Is a Man Worth?

Any Answer Is Guesswork. Not So With a Horse

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

England lost many billions in the war. The cutting down of her death rate will more than make up for the loss. The death rate of seventy years ago, now cut in two, is the lowest ever known in England.

Only 450,629 died in 1921. At the old rate the deaths would have been 850,000. Four hundred thousand English lives saved every year means in cash an annual saving of at least four hundred million dollars, allowing for each Englishman only one thousand dollars, the price of a healthy slave before the war.

John R. Madden sold an eleven-year-old stallion called The Finn for $110,000. Thus the highest price on record in this country, a hundred and ten times the estimated value of the average man.

The horse is worth the money because he has proved it by "two crops" of colts that have inherited his racing qualities.

Eugenics aim to make human beings "breed true," but that won't happen. Nature intends to keep us all about even with accidental exception here and there. Wisely, she won't allow us to breed any race of supermen. Great sons of great men known to history can be counted on your ten fingers.

Do We Like Titles?

Yes, Indeed, We Do

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

Do we "dearly love a lord" in this glorious republic? We do, and we love anything that sounds faintly royal. A man who calls himself halfbrother of the King of Spain, for whom the Spanish Embassy refused to vouch, was allowed to take up the time of the Treasury and State Departments with his "proposal for European rehabilitation" and his imaginings about Mussolini planning to be Emperor of Italy, and the Germans having four times more wealth than before the war.

How many Americans with ideas worth while, but with no flavor of snobbishness to recommend them, have vainly tried for a government hearing?

For a Greater Boston

Mr. Kiley's Argument in Favor of His Bill Makes Undemocratic Assault on Poorer Sections.

We are greatly astonished and even dismayed at the argument which Daniel J. Kiley of Boston made in favor of his bill to establish a greater Boston which should include the suburban cities. He made a most undemocratic and most untactful assault upon the poorer, in the sense of possessing wealth, communities of the city of Boston. He predicated the desirability of a greater Boston upon the desirability of depriving the poorer sections of the city of an influential voice in the city's public affairs.

Since Mr. Kiley himself sprang from the loins of the poorer sections of the city and would be the last to deny or to be ashamed of this fact, it must have taken a fierce brain storm to have betrayed him into such language and such an argument.

We are surprised at the argument because we have always regarded Mr. Kiley as a man of sound democratic instincts. We are dismayed because Mr. Kiley has greatly injured the cause he advocates—a cause in which the Boston American is much interested.

We want to see a greater Boston for entirely different reasons. If we thought that it would work but to minimize the influence of the poorer sections we should oppose the scheme.

We want to see the suburbs of Boston brought within the city limits in some way which will make Boston a bigger city because we want Boston to be given throughout the country her true size. If we include within the city limits the same territory that the other big cities of the country include within their city limits, we should jump up to be the third city in America instead of seventh and should command the respect and the business which goes with the reputation for size. There would also be certain co-ordinating economies in conducting the city government which would spring from an inclusion of the Metropolitan District within the city limits.

If we could work out a plan by which we could retain local autonomy in those respects in which the different cities and towns in the district are most sensitive, surrounding only those general authorities which ought to be surrounded to a central power, we could probably establish such a plan.

We hope such gentlemen in the General Court as are of statesmanlike disposition and ability will take hold of the plan to enlarge Boston and see what can be done with it.

WINIFRED BLACK ON MORALS

By Winifred Black

DR. WALTER B. PITKIN, associate professor of philosophy of Columbia University, says that domestic triangles will be solved one hundred years from now by "consultant moralists," who will tell people what's the matter with them and how to get over it.

Consultant Moralists will be persons educated for the job.

They will go out and collect data, add the data and subtract it, multiply the data and divide it, and fix everything—just as easy!

For instance, if a steady, sober, middle-aged man falls in love with a fluffy little ruffles of seventeen and begins to neglect his wife and forget his children —will Mrs. Middle-age cry and scold and perhaps try to commit suicide?

Not in the good year 2023, says Dr. Pitkin.

Not she. She will call in Consultant Moralists, and tell them all about it, and the Consultant Moralists will trapeze all over the neighborhood and collect data on Husband and on Wife and on Miss Fluffy Ruffles.

And when it is all collected, they will call the three victims together and tell them about it.

Wouldn't it be fun to tell everybody their own business and make them have to listen to you, whether they wanted to or not?

But hist, hark, listen, pause, cogitate and reflect—who would tell me about mine and make me listen—and obey?

China Revives Bull Fighting

SHANGHAI, Feb. 16.—Spain and Mexico may think they hold the honors for bull fighting, but they are all wrong. Bull fighting was a favorite indoor sport in China long before the dashing Spaniards ever thought of rounding circles around a bull.

Shanghai will soon be famous for its bull fights. A spacious arena is now being constructed in the French settlement on a ten-acre tract of land for the purpose of staging the fights. The bulls will be obtained from Kinghua, Chekiang. Forty trained bulls will arrive in Shanghai shortly and be held in readiness for the grand opening fight.

The Hot Water Bottle

Please send the hot water bottle
To the fountain at Postoffice square;
Give it to him to put under him
To preserve his supply of hot air.

Now, who is this that's squealin'?
Is it our own J. Jasper Phelan
(Tell me quickly, but tell me true),
Who comes from the land where the nose is blue?

The old homeland, our "Lady of Snows";
The cold northland, where the red herrin' grows;
The bold high land of the big snowshoes,
The land of Phelan and freedom and booze!

Resounding through the unfettered press,
The real black art and nothing less;
Those columns rear their lofty brow
To the honor of Jim, who sent Canada coal.

From the loftier sweeps of the hills of Bingham
To the rolling sands of the beach of Hingham
Let the bugles blow and the bells be tolled
To honor the man who kept Canada coaled.

Sixty Per Cent. Slate

Editor Boston American:

I bought one-half ton of coal, paying $7.75 for it last week. It is sixty per cent. slate and was thirty per cent. ice and buckwheat, or fine stuff, and ten per cent. real coal. It is like looking for pins in a haystack to find the coal, there is so little. It took us three days to dig it in an old iron bucket, which was placed on the stove. We got a half pint of water in every hod after melting the ice. A Malden company sold us the coal. It is useless to tell our fuel administrator, as he seems to protect the dealers and also the mine owners.

We have all been ill with colds because of the cold in the house due to the poor coal. I am glad your paper is exposing the scandal.

THE HELPING HAND

Do Not Inclose Stamps. Letters Will Not Be Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls

ED. NOTE—The Boston American wishes to thank J. J. B., who has donated two typewriters and some clothes and promised other material for the Helping Hand. One machine will be given to a disabled veteran and the other to a poor girl who needed it in order to help support herself and mother.

Must Be Ten Months

Editor Helping Hand:

Thanks for the addresses of the mothers with baby girls for adoption, but I found, on communicating, that their babies are under five months, when we would like one not under ten months, with blue eyes, light hair, not under 11½ months or over fifteen months. Our baby is so ill that the doctor comes every day. He says that it is not a physical sickness, but just grieving over the loss of his little sister.

Sending Large Box

Editor Helping Hand:

I received your letter with three addresses, two of which I got in touch with. Have just packed a large box which I will send by express to Mrs. H. in Medford, who has a very deserving family. She has three children sick with chickenpox, and her husband has a bad case of tuberculosis and has to go to Rutland immediately. Also have just packed a large box for Mrs. C. in Charlestown, which I will send. There are ten children and the husband sick. Please send me the addresses of the two who answered Mrs. M. A. H. in Saturday's paper, as we have a good box of clothes for both parties. You are doing a wonderful work.

MRS. M. A. H.

ED. NOTE—This is splendid. But it is you and the other generous readers who are doing the wonderful work.

Will Help Child

Editor Helping Hand:

Will you kindly send me the address of Bernadette, the twelve-year-old girl? I would like to help her. It seems strange she has the same name as our little girl, who is fifteen years old. We have read the Boston American ever since it was first published in Boston, as I was a Boston girl before I married.

E. M. J.

ED. NOTE — Thank you for your offer of help. Bernadette's address will be forwarded you.

Wed Too Easy, Says Canadian

WINNIPEG, Feb. 16. — "I want to make it hard to get married. We always shall have the poor with us so long as it is easy to get married—so long as the people can go into the great adventure of life as they would into a picture show."

This was the view expressed by Mr. G. B. Clark, secretary of the Social Welfare Committee, in an address delivered at Winnipeg.

A Canadian move toward legislation aimed at preventing premature marriage was foreshadowed by Mr. Clark.

He stated that fifty per cent. of the girls who came within the scope of the Welfare Committee were married between the ages of eighteen and twenty.

THE ENTENTE HOLDS BY A THIN KHAKI LINE

By Herbert Kaufman

READ Lord Curzon's speech before Parliament. He predicts that the League of Nations won't work without the United States.

Our folks haven't joined because they don't want it to work within the United States.

Europe insists that we ought to take a partnership in her troubles. The terms of the partnership include comanagement of America.

Bankruptcy and confusion there. Money and prosperity here—no, thank you.

The more we study the proposition, the more we grow convinced that "hands across the sea" chiefly means hands in our pockets.

England's attitude in the Ruhr matter encourages our own aloofness. Bonar Law informs Parliament that the only thread holding the entente together is the thin British line along the Rhine.

The reparations question is wedging Paris and London farther and farther apart.

Lloyd George and his successor are one in declaring that France will find nothing but trouble in the Ruhr.

Poincare proceeds against their advice and in face of their protests.

President Harding has nothing to say.

Severe colds have made Ambassador Geddes, Secretary Hughes and the German Ambassador inaccessible to interviews. Three at a time. A remarkable coincidence.

Ship Subsidy Still at Sea

No ship subsidy in sight.

Evidently we shan't become a ranking maritime nation —that is, for the present.

The country may think differently when world order is restored and farmers and manufacturers go begging for bottoms. We'll learn then that a big export business can't be conducted without a prompt delivery system.

The money we spend building highways is a transportation subsidy. Vessels are trucks on keels instead of wheels. Or call them ocean railroads.

If you believe that Canada should haul all our crops —as are right in thinking that foreign vessels ought to carry our cargoes.

Or have you really thought about the matter at all?

Hear the Little Robin Sing

Here are more things to think about.

The American Can Company has added seven millions to surplus. Twice as many containers used last year. Meaning, increased production of fruits and vegetables—doubled cannery output and more tinned goods on grocery shelves.

Dividends as well as straws show which way the wind is blowing.

Deere & Co., manufacturers of agricultural implements, made a million dollars in 1922. They lost a million in '21.

Just one of the little robins that sing of better cheer in the farming districts.

The Tennessee Electric Power Company's annual statement indicates that more power was sold and bigger profits made than ever before in the State's history. Tennessee is breaking business records.

Pass that on to the pessimists.

Nickels and Dimes and Better Times

Gillette Razor stockholders find that they have seven and a half more millions to divide. Observe how it pays to wonder if old ways are best after all. Big nations use lots of little notions—when affairs are flourishing. As ours are.

The Bell Company of Illinois only cleared a quarter of a million more than Spearmint. Wrigley's $6,146,000 ahead on the year. Almost twice 1921 profits. Which proves that he had twice as many nickels to spare. Another cloud broom.

Young men who think that money can't be made except in vast operations will please witness that fortune is also a penny and dime collector.

The largest coin in the Woolworth Building is a ten-cent piece.

The Stuff Prosperity's Made Of

If Wall Street really understood what prosperity's made of stocktickers would also leap at the news that a hundred and eight thousand patents were filed at Washington within a year.

Nine thousand inventions and intentions every month. Factory aced, keys for pressing problems, wheel spinners and time shears.

One hundred thousand minds in overalls, working to bring down costs and increase production.

Simpler engines and safer aeroplanes and shrewder tools in those blue prints.

One hundred thousand bets that radio and automobiles and locomotives and washing machines can be improved.

Different monkeywrenches and canopeners and motor fuels—substitutes for coal, stronger traps for lightening, scalpels for surgery, fresh marvels for the dentist's kit—jigs and bills and airbrakes; firechecks and death postponers—coming at the rate of three hundred a day.

China hasn't thought that hard in the last ten centuries.

Nations bound by precedent are bound to decay. Wherever there's penury, folk are not thinking. The real wealth of peoples is in their brains.

No cause for America to worry about war debts, foreign conditions or futures while imagination keeps up its clip!
